Marshall, Spader & Co., wired J. G. Pratt (King Edward Hotel), at the close of the market.

The long柄 of trading yesterday gave some prominence of what has taken place to day, the market having been quiet for most of the time. The market was then stimulated with advances most prominently distributed and early made, leading to very high records for the movement.

The early influence of general effect was the result of the Bank of England's decision to cut its rate to 2½ per cent, and consequently strength of London markets.

The market, as a feature in London trading, which was followed here by a further advance in stock market, which became prominent with this rallying Copper became active and with the exception of Sugar, mineral and wheat were generally strong.

The market maintained its position throughout the rest of the session.

The following day, although it was
