

louder and more imperative. The state of society at Home demands Missionary effort, and it must be put forth. The vast numbers of thoughtless, uneducated, Sabbath-breaking population in our crowded cities, must be enlightened and evangelized, by direct Missionary and aggressive effort. The perishing heathen must be taught by us, as well as by other communities, to cast their idols to the moles and the bats, and worship their Creator and Saviour in spirit and in truth. The Mission in Canada must be yet further extended, and agents be increased in number, so as to render our efforts commensurate to the growing requirements of that vast and interesting portion of the British Empire. To these labours of love, we are called by Providence: by the spiritual necessities of our fellow creatures: by the immense obligations, springing from our own mercies: by the responsibilities arising from our privileges, our talents, and resources; and to these efforts we are pledged by our covenant relation to God, and by our own recorded and reiterated purposes. Let us then put energy into our Missionary operations, and faithfully and cheerfully fulfil the sacred duty which God has assigned to us. Let none of us live in vain; but strive, by our individual and combined exertions, liberality, and prayers, to accomplish the noble design of our existence; and leave this bad world better than we found it. The Committee feel deeply impressed with the necessity of special prayer, for the prosperity of their efforts, and entreat the respected Superintendents of Circuits and other Ministers to frame their arrangements so, that prayer-meetings may be simultaneously held in all our Circuits in behalf of our Missions: then the God that heareth prayer will show us His great salvation, and in blessing He will bless us, and in multiplying He will multiply us; and in us and in our seed shall millions of our fellow-men be blessed; and the happy day shall be accelerated, when the whole earth shall be filled with His glory, and all flesh shall see His salvation together. Even so, come Lord Jesus; Hallelujah, for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth!
