ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

MRS. CRACKNUTS HAS GOOD LUCK

The Twins started out to deliver the things.

One day Mrs. Cracknuts telephoned to the store for some groceries. "I want two cents worth of soap," she said, "and one cent worth of tea, and five cents worth of butter, and a loaf of bread, and a pint of maple syrup."

"I'm sorry," said Nancy who had answered the telephone for Mrs. Cracknuts, "but we haven't a drop of maple syrup left."

"Oh, dear!" cried Mrs. Cracknuts.

lady in a disappointed voice. "All right," said Nancy. "Thank you, Mrs. Cracknuts."

Mrs. Cracknuts got the groceries all ready and put them into a basket and the twins started out to deliver the things to Mrs. Cracknuts who lived in Maple Tree Place.

"Come in," called the squirrel lady. "Just put the groceries on the table, please. I've got my hands in the dish-water."

"Certainly," said Nick, opening the door and laying out the bread and butter and everything on the nice clean kitchen table.

"When will Mister Bags be having more maple sugar?" asked Mrs. Cracknuts.

"I don't think he'll be having any more," said Nancy. "because it's getting late in the season, he says, and the syrup has all run out of the maple trees."

"Well, I'm sorry," sighed Mrs. Cracknuts. "The one thing that Daddy and I love better than nuts even, is maple syrup. I just feel as though I couldn't stand it to have to do without it. Thank goodness those dishes are done. I'm hurrying to get through, for the paper-hanger is coming. Something has leaked through my walls and made them all damp."

"That's too bad," said Nancy. "Why, it's running down onto the floor, too. It's all over your floor, Mrs. Cracknuts, and it's sticky."

"Sticky!" almost shrieked Mrs. Cracknuts. "Whatever can it be?"

A dash from London Saturday announced that Great Britain, through its postal department, intended to establish a 200-kilowatt radio telephone plant at Rugby. It will be similar to that used for the last eighteen months by the American Telephone Company here and the Radio Corporation of America.

"Oh, dear! How lovely!" cried Nancy.

"I'll make a stopper so it won't be wasted," said Nick. And he took a little piece of wood and stopped the hole.

Daddy Cracknuts and his wife had enough syrup to last them all summer, and enough for company too.

Don't you wish you lived in a maple-tree?

ANNOUNCE OCEAN 'PHONE SERVICE

London and New York Expected to be Connected in November.

New York, May 26—Some time in November a New York business man will lift the receiver of his telephone and speaking into the mouthpiece will exclaim: "Hello!" At the same instant a London business man will speak into a telephone in the British capital, inquiring, "Are you there?" This, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company announced Saturday.

THE OLD HOME TOWN By STANLEY

day, would mark the beginning of regular telephone service between New York and London. And, what works between these two cities can operate just as successfully, in time, between New York and Paris, Venice, Constantinople and Rio de Janeiro.

A despatch from London Saturday announced that Great Britain, through its postal department, intended to establish a 200-kilowatt radio telephone plant at Rugby. It will be similar to that used for the last eighteen months by the American Telephone Company here and the Radio Corporation of America.

Atmosphere Affects Service.

What will happen is this: Subscribers at each end will be connected to their radio stations by wire telephone lines. At the outset the service will depend largely upon atmospheric conditions, which change from hour to hour. But the wireless engineers are convinced they will be able to cope with static within a reasonable length of time.

Then again, on January 14, 1923, the company's president, H. P. Thayer, speaking from 195 Broadway, we heard by a group of engineers in New Southgate, England.

The answers from London, however, had to be sent by cablegram. No winter answer will be instantaneous, over the wireless telephone. Experts have found that owing to sudden changes in atmospheric conditions, it sometimes is necessary to use 10,000 times as much power to get audible speech across the ocean as it is at other periods.

Preliminary to the inauguration of the London-New York service, the telephone company is urging subscribers to think up bright things besides "Hello" to say when they get connected.

Finger prints are reported to have been successfully forged.

DISCUSS SUCCESSOR.

At a meeting of the vestry of Trinity church last night the report of the committee on a successor to Rev. Canon R. A. Armstrong, retiring rector, was received. The matter will further be dealt with and will probably come before a meeting of the congregation some time in June. Routine business was also taken up.

FABLES ON HEALTH Normal Weight Gains

The Mann child had long since outgrown the "baby scale," on which the pounds and ounces were regularly calculated.

But the Manns did not neglect to watch the growing child's weight, for this is of considerable importance. Statisticians, carefully charting the various weights for the young child, have arrived at the following figures:

At two years:

The boy should weigh slightly more than 28 pounds, and the girl 27 pounds. Height: Boys, 33-35 inches; girls, 32-34 inches.

Three years: Boys, 33 pounds, and girls, 31 pounds. Height: Boys, 36 inches, and girls, 35 inches.

Four years: Boys, 38 pounds or slightly more, and girls, 35 pounds. Height: Boys, 38½ inches; girls, 36-37 inches.

Five years: Boys, 41 pounds, 6 ounces; girls, 41 pounds, 3 ounces. Height: Boys, about 42 inches, and girls, 41.8 inches.

These are important years in growth, both in weight and height, and some, of course, grow more rapidly than others. The figures quoted are those of average normal children.

Don't neglect to watch your child's weight and height.

11 TO BE TRIED FOR MURDER AND THEFT

Montreal, May 26—That only $32,000 had so far been recovered of the $142,288 stolen when the Hochelaga bank collection car was held up in this city on April 1 and the chauffeur and a bandit shot dead, was stated here this afternoon in the court of King's bench by Crown Prosecutor Calder after nearly all day had been taken up in the selection of the jury.

Eleven suspects are to be placed on trial charged with murder and receiving stolen money, but of these only Giuseppe Serafini was put in the dock today. Taking of evidence will begin tomorrow morning.
