CINCINNATI WINS THIRD GAME OF WORLD'S SERIES

Count Now Stands Three to One in Favor of The Reds-Large Crowd in Attendance

By defeating Chicago Saturday afternoon by a score of 2 to 0 the Cincinnati Reds won their third game in a series of nine to decide the championship of the world. The count now stands three to one, with the White Sox on the smalend. The game was mitten

363 fans, the largest in attendance so far during the series. As has been the case in all four played so far in the series, the loss of the game can be indirectly attributed to the pitcher. In the first game Cicotte blew up in the fourth innings and the Reds clinched the game. In the second contest Williams was wild and his size passes to first was the cause of his downfall. In the third game Fisher, the Reds pitcher, started trouble for himself by heaving the ball into deep centre while attempting to throw a man out running to second. In Saturday's game Cicotte got himself in bad in the fifth inning when he fielded a liner off Duncan's bat and then threw wide to first. the runner continuing to second ad later scoring on Jackson's wild throw to the plate. These slips might have gone unnoticed if either of the teams had been

Extravagance For First Time

A great many persons have taken their first lessons in thrift during the last two years. Whether the experience will make a lasting impression upon them remains to be seen. As long as there was some big motive behind the necessity for saying such as existed during the trying war days, it was not a difficult matter to persevere in the determination to save every dollar possible.

The various loan and thrift campaigns opened our eyes to what was expected of us and the desire to back up the men whad sent into the thick of the mighty struggle was sufficient to make us do our part cagerly.

Now that the pressing demand has passed there are some of us who feel relieved of a great burden. We welcome the return of the opportunity to do with our money as we see fit, and when we see our bank accounts dwindling we try to salve our consciences by placing the responsibility on the high cost of living.

That probably has a good deal to do with our money as we see fit, and when we see our bank accounts dwindling we try to salve our consciences by placing the responsibility to save for the proverbial rainy day, but on the other hand we was the contracting the trying to get that back to add to what they are going to succeed, they are going to succeed them well on the road to the fulfillment of some bright dream, and they are going to munted to $47.72.
