EYE SAVED WITH A WATCH GLASS.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 29.—Medical students who are engaged in the study of ophthalmology are wondering at the feat Dr. Fleming Carrow, professor of that branch, performed upon a young man. The patient had completely lost the sight of one eye through disease, and Dr. Carrow inserted a small thin watch crystal beneath the lid of the other eye to save it. So far the experiment seems to be very successful, and it is expected that the flesh will knit closely around the watch crystal, so as to permit no impurities to enter it.
