In Hand to Hand Fight With a Lion

Lieutenant G. S. Anderson, Eighth Hussars, of Durham, who has been attached to the intelligence department, is suffering from blood poisoning, the result of a lion received from a lion a month or six weeks ago on the borders of Siam and Abyssinia, says the London Daily Mail.

In company with the native servant, Lieutenant Anderson went out for a day's shooting. Finding a lion at short distance he fired and the shot grazed the animal's skull, slightly wounding it. The animal was lacerated upon the officer, threw him to the ground, and bit him through the knee just as he fired a charge of double barreled sporting rifle through its head.

The animal continued to claw and bite him, while Lieutenant Anderson, fighting for his life, clubbed the lion with the butt end of the rifle. All the while blood was streaming from the wounds of the lion, which was of unusual size.

The native servant, although practically unarmed, rushed to the aid of his injured master, and at length the animal, exhausted from the loss of blood, slunk away, leaving Lieutenant Anderson almost overcome and in a very precarious condition.

Subsequently the lion was found dead a little distance from the scene of the encounter. The injured officer was conveyed to the coast and at Aien embarked for London, where he will be treated in a hospital.

Canada's Pulp Wood.

When the American Senate is establishing a duty on wood pulp from countries with hostile tariff on this and other products, undoubtedly as an attempt to induce Canada to give American paper mills free access to our forests, sensible and well informed American papers admit that a continuance of a policy of restriction in Canada will force American mills to move the business. The bulk of American industries to Canada in search of cheaper raw material and fewer restrictions upon enterprise is perfectly natural, says the Minneapolis Tribune. Capital is the most mobile thing in the world, and international boundaries have become imaginary for it. You can exclude emigration and shut out goods, but no nation makes laws against money seeking investment.

It is as natural that Americans should build mills in Canada for working up Canadian products as that the beef trust should take over Argentine cattle in that country and ship the meat here in refrigerated ships. Then further development of the power problem, Canadian wheat will be ground largely in Canada and American capital will finance the grinding. An earlier phenomenon probably will be the transfer of our paper pulp mills, if not the paper mills themselves.

Canada is helping this little restriction upon export and we are encouraging it with our general tariff policy. Already Ontario prohibits export of wood suitable to pulp making from crown lands though private owners may do as they please. Ontario has not yet built up a pulp mill industry, but as policy has tended to concentrate the pulp industry in Quebec the effect of this restriction of export paper material like Ontario. The effect of this will be to hammer the custom mills as the writers have been hammering, and starve out the American paper industry.

This is a common-sense statement of and deduction from obvious facts—facts which point unmistakably to a similar policy as the proper one for Canada. We have little to say to lose by refusing to play the game of the United States in this regard, and for this we have present forest conservation and the prospect of valuable future advantages.—Sun.

PLENTY OF TREE TOPS HERE

Chatham Man to Extract Turpentine and Other Products From Lumbermen Is Rejected Wood.

A new industry is now being promoted on the Miramichi by James Feinbrook. This is a project for extracting turpentine, tar, wood alcohol and wood oils from the stumps and tree tops and lumber left by the lumbermen. Mr. Feinbrook has been successful in extracting a quantity of each of these products by a secret process, and the turpentine is produced to be equal to as good as that produced in Sweden. All winter Mr. Feinbrook has eighty men at work at McKenney Brook, near Ducktown, engaged in making preliminary tests. He has also secured a concession of a large tract of land for ten years, and in order to exhaust this area an expenditure of $100,000 will be necessary. Mr. Feinbrook is planning the formation of a $1,000,000 company to carry on the project.

Ontario Mother Was Inhuman

On charge of neglecting and abusing her ten-year old daughter, Mrs. Eugene Lajoie, of Aylmer, has been brought before the Hull police court.

The case has been a remarkable one. The child is now in the Ottawa hospital as the result of having been beaten. It is stated that the woman had a violent dislike to the child from its birth, because it had been given the name of her husband's sister. The child was never allowed to eat with the other children and seldom in the house. It depended largely on the charity of neighbors and on scraps which it picked up. She has been seen eating vegetables and scraps of raw meat.

It is alleged the mother beat the child unmercifully and compelled the other children to abuse her. Sheriff Wright, who made the arrest, stated this is the most cruel case which ever came to his attention.

WEDDING BELLS

Scot Cove, Grand Manan, N. B. June 24.—A social and happy event that has been anticipated with great interest took place on Tuesday, June 22, at 8.30 p.m. in the restored Baptist Church, when Miss Katherine Benson, youngest daughter of Irvine Benson, was united in marriage with Walter K. Benson. Rev. H. C. Archer, of Calais (Me.), a former pastor of the bride, performed the ceremony. The church, which was newly decorated, was filled with the friends and relatives of the contracting parties. Miss Edna Harvey and Miss Vera Harvey, sisters of the bride, acted as bridesmaids. Miss Marie Benson, sister of the groom played very nicely Mendelssohn's wedding march as the bridal party entered the church and took their place under a beautiful large floral lei which had been arranged for the occasion.

The bride was attended by Miss Marie Dick, of St. George, and was becomingly dressed in white with satin trimmings, and wore a veil of embroidered tulle and carried a pretty bouquet of apple blossoms. The groom was supported by Chester Russel.

The ceremony was followed by a largely attended reception at the home of the bride's parents, where the abundant supply of good things prepared testified to the efficiency of the bride's mother in this particular.

The presents were both numerous and costly, showing the esteem in which the parties were held by their many friends. The happy couple left the following morning by steamer Aurora for Eastport and Boston and will also visit other United States cities before their return to Grand Manan, where they will reside. Their many friends join in wishing them a long and happy life.

Our Good Friends

The instinct for friendship and the impulse of imitation can never be omitted in the study of youth. A man seldom rises above the average of his friends. They have a finger on his destiny during the most plastic period of his life. Generally, should a youth have strength of mind and character, the influence of the living model declines, and if he has entered the abstract world of thought and has left the authority of great principles, he escapes from the tyranny of his little republic, and becomes in his turn a leader, a revolutionary, who creates new ideals and founds a new republic.

Comrades are the educators of youth. They are his books, his teachers, his mentors, his critics. After fifty a man makes few friends. He has crossed the summit and his outlook has changed. On ascending the hill he craves the company of comrades, on descending he keeps company with his thoughts, his memories with his thoughts, his memories and his hopes. Hence youth is gregarious, communal; age solitary, individualistic. Imitation governs the one, originality the other; and often those who have learned most from their friends can teach most to their neighbors.

It is a good thing to have good friends but not to be dominated too much or too long by their example. When we have learned to imitate the best, we must pass on to do for ourselves; and our best; if it is indeed our own, the true expression of our being, is better than the best imitation. However long we may keep or praise our friends, if we live our life true to all that is true and good within us, and sense of loneliness will steal upon us as we advance upon our journey. To the strongest matures persons count less than principles, and to be true to great principles leads us often into strange and desert paths. "The lions walk alone; the jackies herd together."

There is more Catarra in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarra to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarra Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Obituary

MISS VESTA ELMA FISHER

On Thursday June 24th, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Fisher was saddened by the death of their eldest daughter, Vesta Elma, a bright and promising young girl of a lovable and kindly disposition, a clever musician and earnest Church worker. She will be greatly missed in the Church and Sunday School where she has always been a regular and active attendant. She seemed in her usual health until five weeks previous to her death, when she was suddenly stricken with lung trouble, but not until a few days ago were any serious consequences anticipated, then a complication of diseases set in and the end came quickly. She was only eighteen years of age and was preparing to enter normal school in the fall.

The grief-stricken family have the sincere sympathy of the community in their loss of one so dear to all. A father and mother, two brothers and two little sisters are left to mourn.

The funeral which was largely attended, took place on Saturday, June 26th at the Church of the Transfiguration. The Rev. D. L. Blackall officiated. The hymns, "Forever with the Lord," "A few more years shall roll" and "On the Resurrection morn" were expressively rendered by the choir.

The pall bearers were, James McCullough, Eddie Carson, George Flynn and Albert Carson.

Obituary

OSCAR HANSON

On June the 24th, death visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cahlo Hanson, when their second son Oscar was called away. He was a patient sufferer through all his sickness and died with a hope in Christ. Deceased was born in Pennfield in 1885 and leaves a wife, father, mother four sisters and three brothers, besides a host of friends to mourn. The brothers are Charles Hanson of Second Falls, Bert and Will of Pennfield. Sisters are Mrs. Fred Gillmor, Second Falls, Mrs. Warren Wheeler of Central Falls, R. I., Mrs. Edward Williams of Woon, R. I. and Miss Jennie Hanson of Pennfield.

He was united in marriage to Miss Augusta Archibald of Woonsocket, R. I., in 1904. His dying request was for all to give for Christ, and his last words after bidding them good bye was meet me in heaven. The funeral took place on Saturday, June 26th. It was conducted by the members of the Royal Orange Lodge of which deceased was a member. Rev. L. N. Thorne of the Baptist church officiating.

MARGARET E. REED

Margaret E. Reed aged sixty-six, wife of William Reed died at the residence of her son-in-law Chas. Groom, in Bocabod on Friday morning last and was buried on Sunday. Rev. Mr. Thorpe officiated at the funeral. Mrs. Reed's death was a shock to her family and the community in which she lived.

CHARLES EDWARD GHEARDINE

Death entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gheardin on Saturday 25th, inst., and claimed their son Charles Edward, seven years of age. Though death has been expected for some weeks, the little boy made a brave struggle. Being possessed of a warm and generous heart his death is deeply regretted by the whole community, and sincere sympathy is extended to the father and mother in their deep sorrow.

MRS. WALLACE SHAW

The critical illness of Mrs. Shaw came to a fatal termination on Monday evening. The deceased had been suffering from the effects of a fall received some weeks ago, which, with her advanced age, made recovery impossible; she was in her 74th year. Mrs. Shaw was born in the community, and resided here during her long life. Her children Mrs. Foster, of Boston, and son, William, of Chicago were with her in her last hours. The community, and the Episcopal church of which she was a most consistent member, suffer a great loss by Mrs. Shaw's death. The surviving members of the family have much sympathy in their bereavement.
