Example and Precept.

Example and Precept of old were ordained
Twin rulers and guardians of youth, freigns
And bleat were the homes are where jointly the Inculcating kindness and truth.
But Example grew lazy—and sometimes got fon?
And Precept, though land was his tongue,
And roupet wi? roarin' his maxims he grew,
Lost a' his control ower the young.

"Ye mauona do this !" and "Ye mauona say that !"
Was aye the old sough o' his sang;
At fun he would flyte, and would watch for a faut,
Corfounding the right and the wrang;
He spak like a sage, by the square and the rule,
And none could his wisdom deay, If folks can be wise when their acts show And a' their fine counsels belie.

Though Precept hes preached since the warld and filled a' the earth wi' his lore, And toiled for the moral instruction of man, Nae wiser is he than before! And win the regard of the young —

His eloquent teaching more strengthens a cause

Than a' the fine gitts o' the tongue,

At gleg imitation how sharply the bairnes But evil the urchin most readily learns And seldem the road needs to spier ; At smoking and drinking he'll long to excel,
If smoking and drinking he see—
Nor need you reprove what he's learned frae yoursel
Fill Precept and Practice agte ',

When launched on life's rapids youth recklessly floa And heeds not what Precept may say, And Passion and Pleasure have sown the wild out They must reap on some sad, future day; When bills, loug discounted, with interest come of Then poor battered bankrupts may tell, How far home examples, the gentle and true, All Preaching and Precept excell.

A Touching Incident.

The war has given birth to many gen of poetry, patriotic, humorous and pathetic, illustrative of the spirit and varied impres sions of the times. A volume compiled from the newspapers of the day would prove a rich contribution to the unlitary literature of the country. I send below a touching morceau, from an unknown pen, copied from the Philadelphia Bulletin, suggested by an affecting scene in one of the army hospitals. A brave lad of 16 years belonging to a New England regiment, was mor tally wounded at Fredericksburg, and sent to the Patent-Office Hospital at Washington was anxiously looking for the coming of his mother. As his last hour approached and sight grew dim, he mistook a sympathetic lady, who was wiping the cold, clammy perspiration from his forehead, for the expected one, and with a smile of joy lighting up in his pale face, whispered tenderly, "Is that mother?" "Then," says the writer, "drawing her towards him with all his fee ble strength, he nestled his head in he arms like a sleeping infant, and thus died with the sweet word 'mother' on his quiver-

"IS THAT MOTHER?"

Is that mother bending o'er me. As she sang my oradle hymn-Kneeling there in tears beside me! Say ?-my sight is growing dim.

Comes she from the old home lowly. Out among the northern hills, To her pet boy dying slowly
Of war's battle wounds and ills

Mother! oh, we bravely battled-Battled till the day was done: While the leaden hail-storm rattled-

But we failed-and I am dying-Dying in my boyhood years,-There—no weeping—self-denying, Noble deaths demand no tears!

Fold your arms again around me; Press again my aching head; Sing the lullaby you sang me-Kiss me, mother, ere I'm dead.

Baldness.

The ancient Romans seldom wore any thing on the head, and a case of baldness was a rare thing.

Baldness is very unfrequent among the Indians; their heads are habitually uncovered

Baldness among women is very much rarer than among men. Women's baldness is about the temples, that of men on the top of his head. It may be then inferred that one cause of baldness is keeping the head covered and heated, thus excessively stimulating the hair glands by an unnatur power, and also by preventing the evapora-tion and escape of that effete matter, the continued presence of which is always al warmth, and prematurely exhausting their death, in whatever part of the system it may occur. This is effectually done by the large quantities of greese and oil which our women plaster on the sides of necessary to make Cuffee's wrath boil over, the head and temples the hair dust and oil which he would be sertain to vent upon the the head and temples, the hair dust and oil

Flax-Cotton.

The manufacture of flax-cotton was recently commenced in Lockport, N. Y., by a company of ample means, who now say that they are satisfied, from their experiments thus far, that the result of the enterprise will justify all their expectations, and prove profitable to the community. The specimens of their product are said to be very good, and were made by machinery built expressly for the purpose. The flax used is said to be the ordinary kind raised in the vicinity, and the following is an account of the process of manufacture, condensed from turer.

The flax is then first put through a machine called a brake, consisting of grooved or fluted rollers. By this means the woody part or shive is broken up, and portion of it falls out. It is then put into a scutcher, a machine which whips out, and eliminates, most of the woody material from the fibre. Finally it is put through a thin machine called a duster, by which the separating and called a duster, by which the s called a duster, by which the separating and cleaning process is completed, and the fibre is presented in the condition of this specimen. Its white appearance is the result of a peculiar process in bleaching. The hunter noted all these signs, and saw that very little more was the head and temples, the hair dust and oil making a coating over the temples almost as impervious as India rubber, thus choking up the roots or glands and preventing the proper blood circulation; for it is the blood which carries nutriment to the hair.

The top of the head is most profusely supplied with bloodvessels, yet men grow bald there first, by keeping the head too warm; also and chiefly, by the prevalent fash ion of generations past, of wearing hard fur and silk hats, which, by their pressure all around the head, foreibly detain the blood from the
