The thirty-first Session of the Medical Faculty of the McGill University, will be opened in the customary manner on Monday, the 2nd November, 1863; and be continued during the six months following, by being devoted to instruction in the various courses which are subsequently detailed.

To young gentlemen in need of information upon the best manner of pursuing their studies, the following suggestions appear to recommend themselves.

Exclusively of general education, professional reading for some time previously to matriculation is advised as a preparation, whereby familiarity with technical terms will be gained, and an insight obtained into the subjects to be brought under notice during lectures.

Though three years constitute the shortest time required for College attendance, yet the Student is at liberty to extend it as much further as he pleases; the addition of a year, or even two, is considered to be a great benefit, for it obviates the crowding of branches within too brief a term, and permits of a more extensive attainment of the topics they embrace.

Attention is recommended to be given during the first Session to the primary branches entirely; during the second Session an increase is proper, and two of the final courses may be profitably conjoined
