

CLIPPINGS.

Mistaken Enthusiasm.

Salvini, the actor, when having a photograph taken, was so delighted with the proof that he flung his arms about the operator and embraced him. This was gratifying to the operator, and did not cost Salvini anything. A gentleman in this place, whose name we will not mention, was very much pleased with the great actor's artifice—as he persisted in terming it—and believing that appreciation is dearer to a true artist than money, he concluded to have some portraits of himself. When the proof was shown him he knew that was the time to fling his arms about the operator, but he could not pluck up sufficient courage. He thought he would wait a more favorable opportunity and became very nervous in consequence. Pretty soon the operator had occasion to reach under a case of specimens for a cloth, and, as he turned to come out, the agitated patron, full of desperation, shut his eyes and swooped down upon him. The frightened artist believing that this was a new process for garrotting, straightway screamed murder, and sought to defend himself until the arrival of aid, by beating the assassin over the face and head with a brush full of varnish. Every lick of the brush developed additional ferocity in the face of the customer, and consequently increased the terror of the operator, whose shouts aroused the inmates of the building, and brought to his help in quick succession a tailor, two dressmakers, four clerks, and a one-legged basket maker. The benumbed and varnished victim was quickly overpowered, and being set upon by as many of the miscellaneous as could be accommodated, was firmly held until the arrival of an officer. Fortunately he was known by the officer, who recognised him from his apparel—not being able to see his features for the varnish—and upon explaining that the cause of his coming down upon the operator was a sudden dizziness he experienced, he was released. A hack was obtained and he was taken home, and his head put in lime water for the removal of the varnish from his face. But it was found necessary to shave his scalp, as it was impossible to save his hair. He is glad now to hang the pictures when he did—Dunbury Ave.

Gardening on Shares.

A good story, and all the better in being true, is told of one of our citizens, who let a piece of ground to a man in shares. The man would hire the lot, but the owner doubtful of getting any money of the tenant, proposed to let it upon the promise of receiving half the produce. Occasionally during the summer he passed the spot and was pleased with the cultivation it was receiving and with its goodly show of vegetables. Harvest time came and passed, and he heard nothing from his tenant, till, in response to a hint, the latter sent him a water-melon and three shrivelled cucumbers. Indignant at this shabby treatment, he called upon the man and asked him what he meant. "Why, you see, 'quire," replied the tenant, "the pesky boys stole all your half but the melon and the cucumbers."—New Bedford Mass., Mercury.

A fine distinction was that the preacher of the Richmond First Baptist Church made: "My bruders," said he, "when you say as slyves dere might 'a been 'scuse for cuttin' a slice off'n marse's tuncer or lookin' a handfull o' corn-meal, or robbin' de honor, for you all work o' hard den, my bruders, and you earned it, my bruders and sisters; but now you is all free men dar ain't no 'scuse whatever. You sell on your own 'possibility."

Some time since we announced that several abolitionists were imprisoned in Russia. It is now stated that not only have they been released, but the czar has sent one of his chief officers to persuade the Mennonites to remain in Russia, promising them exemption from military duty.

"White coal" is latest Austrian discovery. It consists of felted cabbage fibres, like peat, which contains, interspersed between, fine grains of sand. It is easily combustible, and burns with a bright flame. The white coal covers large tracts, requiring no mining, and it is said to be already used to a large extent for fuel.

About a ton of ice is used every night to cool the air that is pumped into the British House of Commons. The air is filtered and rendered absolutely pure.

Nothing is rarer than a solitary lie for lies breed like Sarinam toads; you cannot tell one but out it comes with a hundred young ones on its back.

CARD.

Electors of the Co. of Cumberland. GENTLEMEN.—In response to the urgent solicitation of many of you I will be a Candidate, at the next Election, shortly to take place, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Pingo, our late representative in the Local Assembly. If you should deem it wise to honour me with your confidence and support, I will try to represent you faithfully, and to the best of my judgment and ability. I believe that the present government merits the confidence of the people, and that their general policy is wise and judicious. Believing that a majority of the independent Electors of Cumberland, will endorse these views, I am come forward with confidence, trusting that you will elect me as one of your representatives, for the remainder of the Parliamentary term. I only ask a fair trial, and if I should prove unworthy of your confidence, you can easily select another to take my place. I am, gentlemen, Your obedient servant, PETER McDONALD.
