ANARCHISTS IN PORTLAND.

One of the Group Confirms Report of Murderous Design.

Portland, Ore., June 20.—Statements made by Walter Scalaszkiwez, formerty president of the Polish National Society, confirm a recent report that this city harbors an anarchistic society which contemplates the assassination of President Roosevelt.

Scalaszkiwez's statements were made to the police Monday while he was securing warrants for several members of his society, whom, he alleges, attacked and beat him Sunday night for objecting to an alleged misuse of the society's funds.

Scalaszkiwez states that there about 80 anarchists in the city, and that they hold regular meetings at places northeast of Portland.

end of Young Canadian—Combined of Whisky and Morphine.

Buffalo, June 20.—What was at first thought to be a mysterious murder by poison was reported to the authorities yesterday morning, when Robert Byrch, a young Canadian, was found dead in bed in his boarding-house, 114 Swan street, after he had been assisted home by two strange men. Death, due to the combination of whisky and morphine, self-administered, was the decision of the police and Medical Examiner John D. Howland, after a rigid inwestigation. Byrch was about 21 years old, and it is believed came from Toronto, Ont. He was a sign painter.

Was No Mythical Brother.

Kingston, June 20.—When the County Court Sessions opened yesterday afternoon Abraham Schacher sat in the prisoners' dook instead of his brother Charles, who a few hours before was on trial for stealing furs from McKays store in November last. The resemblance was remarkable, and caused a sensation in court. He said he had returned from New York to save his brother from suffering for his crime, and pleaded guilty. The judge sent him to the Central Prison for a year. Wood, who turned King's witness, was liberated, and Charles Schacher was allowed to go on ball of $3,000 to appear in December next to answer other charges against him. Was No Mythical Brother.

"Have by some surgeon, Shylock, on thy charge to stop his wounds, lest he do bleed to death." People can bleed to death. People can bleed to death. The loss of blood weakens the body. It must follow that gain of blood gives the body strength. The strengthening effect of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is in large part due to its action on the blood-making glands and the increased supply of pure, tich blood it produces. It is only when the blood is impoverished and impure that disease finds a soil in which to root. The "Discovery" purifies the blood and makes it antagonistic to disease. When the body is emaciated, the lungs are weak, and there is chetinate lingering cough, "Golden Medical Discovery" puts the body on a fighting footing against disease increases the vitality that disease is thrown off, and physical health perfectly and permanently restored. It has cured thousands who wore hopeless and helpless, and who had tried all other means of cure without avail.

The Victoria, B. The new appointee, unlike his late father, has no aptitude for politics is not even a clubman, tolerates society only for the pleasure his wife and daughters derive therefrom and will probably rebel when required to don a court uniform. INDUSTRIOUS BIRDS.

Some of Them Rear Several Families In the Year.

In the Year.

Birds are the most interesting of the lower order creatures with which men have to deal, and they are also the most industrious, though according to the ideas of some men their notions of industry are sadly perverted.

The English sparrow is an industrious bird, but its industry is not appreciated to any favorable extent save by naturalists who are not prejudiced. The English sparrow raises several broods of chicks every year, the female beginning to build a new nest almost as soon as the young are out of their shells, and leaving them to the care of the male while she hustless for a new location and new material for a nest.

Many of the minor birds build extra new location and new material for a new location and new material for a nest.

Many of the minor birds build extra nests. The robins may sometimes be seen in summer putting up a nest, having built one and got rid of a first brood. Blackbirds are occasionally industrious in this way, and the warblers are likewise good breeders.

The little field sparrow and its coustin, the song chip, lay eggs in the spring and in summer, and their young are still under tuition in September.

The woodcock, the ruffed grouse and other large birds sometimes build late nests as well as early ones. The late nests as well as early ones. The late broods are probably those of birds whose first lot of eggs was destroyed by a fox or some other predatory animal. But the early broods may be safely ascribed to a young pair of birds, yearlings, who think the first pleasant day of springtime to be a harbinger of many such days.

Hawks and predatory birds are the powers of bird society. They live by the lives of the weaker birds. They are aristocrats, almost ranking with the sir when young and becoming kings and queens before their parents die.

How He Thought Kings Should Die. How He Thought Kings Should Die.

Cramer was Voltaire's Geneva publisher. At a rehearsal of one of Voltaire's tragedies M. Cramer was finishing his role, which was to end with some dying sentences. Voltaire, objecting to the manner in which that death scene was played, cried out in accents of scathing scorn. "Cramer, you lived like a prince during the four preceding acts, but at the fifth you de like a bookseller." Tronchin, being present, could not help in kindness in present, could not help in kindness in terfering. "M. Voltaire," said he deprecatingly, "can you expect to have gentlemen to be at the expense of dresses and fatigue of getting up such gentlemen to be at the expense of dresses and fatigue of getting up such long parts if you thus upbraid them? On the contrary, I think they all deserve the greatest encouragement at your hands, and as to my friend Cramer, I declare that, so far as I am a judge, he dies with the same dignity he lived."

Voltaire raised his head and glanced defantly at Tronchin. "Doctor," he cried, "when you have kings to kill kill them your own way. Let me kill mine as I please."—Notes and Queries.

Discovery of Glass Etching.

The art of etching from glass was discovered by a Nuremberg glass cutter. By accident a few drops of aqua fortis fell upon his spectacles. He noticed that they became corroded and softened where the acid had touched. That was hint enough. He drew figures, upon glass with varnish, applied corroding fluid, then cut away the glass around the drawing. When the warnish was removed, the figures appeared raised upon a dark ground.
