Providing for the Poor.

The wisdom of the present system of providing for the poor of King's county has often been questioned. At present each township provides for its own poor requiring the equipment and maintenance of three separate systems in the county. It looks to us as though this was an unnecessary expense, and that our poor could be much more cheaply and satisfactorily accommodated by one Poor's Asylum for the county. The buildings that are now and have been in use for the purpose certainly must be very unsuitable. What is wanted is a building 'The purpose of my pictures would not a building the artistic neatness of the prosent size of the solution of the county. A new book of poetry, espec purpose certainly must be very unsuitable. What is wanted is a building What is wanted is a building built and equipped for the purpose, and under one management, at which all the poor and harmless insane of the county uld be cared for. One of the objections t) the scheme for uniting the three poor districts of Horton, Cornwallis and Ayles-ford in the past has been that each town-ship already had a poor's honse of its own, which could not be sold except at a loss. ship already had a poor's honse of its own, which could not be sold except at a less. So far as Horton is concerned this objection has in part been removed by the destruction of the poor's house on Saturday last. To build a new house with all the modern improvements for the district of Horton alone, would seem to be an unwise outlay of money when we consider the solution of the poor's house on Saturday of the district of Horton alone, would seem to be an unwise outlay of money when we consider the solution of the poor's house on Saturday of the district of Horton alone, would seem to be an unwise outlay of money when we consider the solution of the poor's house on Saturday of the lines are part full and expressive in the sound, to sense. The present seems to be an opportune time for renewed action in this matter of anial-gamation, as Horton will be under the necessity of providing shelter for its poor in some way at an early date; and alone if no union with the other districts can be arranged for. We should like to hear the opinion of the business men of the county on the subject.
