

Gleaned by the Way.

"For my part, I don't see any more harm in a game of cards than in a game of chess."
"But consider the associations."
"What associations?"
"Why, at chess you play with two bishops, while at cards you play with four knaves."

Nervous Prostration.

Mrs. Edward Schwartz, Edgewood, Wis., writes: "I had prostration, could not sleep, had frequent headaches and dizzy spells, palpitation of the heart, was tired, exhausted and very irritable and nervous. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills did it all and I am cured. Had to take two boxes."

Chief Kohler, of the Cleveland police, has a detective job, if reports are true, trace by investigation rather than by deduction.

It is said that this sleuth, examining a jeweler's window that had been broken, muttered sagely:

"Ump! This is more serious than I thought. It's broke on both sides."

Constipation and Headach.

Mrs. J. M. Brown, Cambridge, Ont., writes: "I was troubled constantly with constipation of the bowels and never got anything to do the matter until I had been advised by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They also cured my headaches and improved my general health very much. There is a place for Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in every home as a cure for constipation, headache and indigestion."

Robert Smith, brother of Sydney Smith, and an ex-Advocate-General on one occasion engaged in an argument with a physician over the relative merits of their respective professions.

"I don't say that all lawyers are crooks," said the doctor, "but you'll have to admit that your profession doesn't make angels of men."
"No," retorted Smith; "you doctors certainly have the best of us there."

At the Yarmouth, N. S. A. Boy's Camp, held at Tynes Falls in August, I found MINARD'S LINIMENT most beneficial for sun burn, as an emollient oint for scalds and burns.

ALFRED STOKES,
General Secretary.

The mountainous waves threatened to engulf the struggling ship at any moment. The captain ordered a box of sky-rockets and fuses brought to the rail, and with his own hands lighted them, in the hope that they would make known his distress to some passing ship.

"Amid the rockets' red glare a tall, thin, slender individual made his way to the rail and reproved the captain as follows:

"Captain, I must protest against this unseemly bravado. We are now facing death. This is no time for a celebration."

"To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and speedy cure for hemorrhoids, the manufacturer has guaranteed to refund to you the full amount of the purchase price if you do not get relief from its use."

Piles

At the close of one of the recent Chapman Alexander revival services in Philadelphia the minister of a church went down the aisle, according to his custom, to greet the strangers in the congregation. "I don't think you are a member of our church," said he to one as he warmly shook his hand. "No, sir," replied the stranger. "Well, you will not think me unduly curious if I ask to what denomination you belong?" asked the minister. "I suppose," responded the other, "I'm really what you might call a submerged Presbyterian." "A submerged Presbyterian?" exclaimed the minister. "I should be glad if you would explain." "Well, I was brought up a Presbyterian, my wife is a Methodist, my eldest daughter is a Baptist, my son is an organizer in a Unitarian church, my second daughter goes to a Congregational Sunday school. But," said the minister again, "you contribute, doubtless, to some church?" "Yes, I contribute to all of them," was the answer; "that's what submerged me."

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Cardinal Wolsey had fallen. "I was trying to dodge an automobile," he explained, "and a roller skater ran into me."

The historians, however, with singular obtuseness, have persisted in placing the blame on Henry VIII.

This Is Best Time For Spring Medicine.

Taken now the blood is renewed, disease germs are destroyed, good summer health is assured. That peculiar weakness so common in the spring, is demoralizing to body and mind alike.

Stupid absent-minded and dull, you feel the need of a stimulating tonic.

To impart quickness and great vitality to the entire system nothing acts like Perrozene.

In a short time it makes you feel fit and fine, creates a feeling of youth and strength that's surprising.

Perrozene revives and braces the atonic because it nourishes and builds up the organs that are weak. As a spring tonic, appetizer and blood strengthener it is unequalled.

A well known resident of Utica, Ont., Mr. H. H. Postle, writes: "From long experience I am convinced that everyone requires medicine in the spring. As a rule the blood is thin and impure and the whole system is congested with poisons that should be cast off. I use Perrozene because it clears up the system, gives you an appetite, makes you feel well. One winter I had serious palpitation of the heart, nervous headache, sleep was not restful and by spring I was in bad shape. I took six boxes of Perrozene and was made the picture of health."

Perrozene makes permanent cures. Absolutely safe because it is purely vegetable and contains no alcohol. It is the best medicine for all ailments. Perrozene costs per box six bottles for $2.00 per dozen.

The Lilac.

In almost every settlement in Nova Scotia the sweet perfume of the lilac now pervades the atmosphere. It seems to flourish everywhere in its last leafy growth.

The Chicago Interior in its last issue gives a short history of this common flower, showing that it has an ancestry reaching back to imperial greatness.

The lilac is a wanderer from the land of Kasher, as its original name "Kasher" means for a flower, certifies. It has a known history in America for more than 250 years having been one of the few precious roots brought over by some Pilgrim Puritan housewife in the hold of some rocking ship. It was even at that time well established in the mother country, as references to it in the literature of Elizabethan days attest.

It had come to England from Spain where the Moors had brought it from the Barbary States, and they in turn had received it from Constantinople. The Turk had learned to love it in his original home in Central Asia, where it is still to be seen.

Then he says, Shall we not greet it in Heaven? Who knows? That he loved the lilac saw from the heights of Parnassus fruit trees and palms in paradise.

Shall we not see the lilac in gardens irrigated by that crystal stream which issues from beneath the great white throne. Though there be no morning and no nightfall there, the great sea which lies so calm and still in its glass like serenity, reflects yet the fire of earthly dawns and sunsets. We are certainly not forbidden to dream that under fairer skies and beside more enduring flowers we shall find once more the lilac that cheered our earthly pilgrimage, flowers forever associated with our sweetest joy, our tenderest emotions and our purest faith.

PICKINGS FROM FICTION.

There is something that is enough for a woman, but all—"The Mississippi Bubble."

Oreodon beatlines as nearly as nearly as a sudorific mutton—"Comments of a Centurion."

No man can be brave who considers plain the chief joy of life—"The Heroine of the Strait."

We ought never to do wrong when people are looking—"A Double Barreled Detective Story."

Occasionally everything, but the rub is to know an occasion when you see it—"The Lady Paramount."

I'd be slow in advising anybody to go crooked, but when you feel you're in the hands of sharpers it's the only way—"Rocking Chair."

The master piece love to deal with the victory of the vanquished, which the world's thinkers know to be greater than the victory of the victor—"The Halcyon."

Be sure, before you give your love and your trust, that you are giving them not only to one who deserves them, but to one who really wants them.

Chief Purpose of Hoops.

There are many useful purposes to which hoops can be applied outside of those generally practiced. As a non-conductor of heat it is used in the protection of water pipes, particularly in crossing bridges, where the pipes are laid in the middle of a long box and the whole filled with melted resin. Hoops is also used in supporting basement floors in machinery, which may be laid over some dry material, as spent molasses, which is carefully laid off, and the planking laid upon temporary supports separating it about two inches above the sand.

Numerous holes about two inches in diameter being bored through these hoops, melted resin is forced through them by means of pumps until the whole space is solidly filled, and then the upper flooring is laid upon these hoops. In case the floor is subjected to shocks sufficient to break the resin, it rapidly joins together again in much the same manner as the respiration of ice.

The Broken Saver.

At an English school a pompous youngster whose father, it was well known, had been a successful omnibus driver a large day bragging ostentatiously of his wealth, representing St. George and the dragon, and having drawn the attention of several companions to it, remarked carelessly:

"Ah, one of my ancestors is supposed to have killed the dragon, don't you know?"

"Good gracious!" inquired the other, somewhat anxiously, "did he run over it?"

What Back on the Blue.

Generally brother turned crimson, the other day, Geraldine never knew him to blush.

Geraldine—I didn't say that he blushed.

Geraldine—What did he do?

Geraldine—Left Yale and entered Harvard.

Ignorant President.

Edmond—Mr. Topgatch is what I call impertinent.

Rudelia—In what way?

Edmond—Why, she is not a Colonial Dame, but when she came to the colonial reception she had on a more elegant frock than any one of the ladies.

Little Willie asks, who does this for me when by saying it was a fruitless search?

Fisher—It probably applies, my son, to the quest of some man who was looking for place upon a pine tree. Chinese News.

If one feels dull and spiritless, in the spring or early summer, they call it "Spring Fever." But there is no fever—usually. It is the after effect of our winter habits. The nerves are numbly at fault. Tired, worn out nerves leave us languid, hollow, and without spirit or ambition. A few doses of Dr. Sloop's Restorer will absolutely and quickly change all of those depressing symptoms.

THE GIRLS OF KASHMIR.

Why they are not as beautiful as they once were.

The girls of Kashmir in former times were sold and carried away to the Punjab, in India. They commanded a large price, and parents in moderate circumstances for centuries past have been in the habit of parting with their daughters to place themselves in easier circumstances, and the daughters have generally been quite willing to escape from a life of penury and labor to one of opulence and ease.

A laborer's man in this part of India will receive for his services a month's wages of $2 or $3 a month, and will receive for his daughters as high as $1,000. There are some cases where $5,000 was paid, but the usual price has been from $150 to $200.

The practice became so common as well as so damaging that a severe law was enacted prohibiting any one from removing any woman from the country, but it is said that the business goes on now as it has done for centuries. It had come to England from Spain where the Moors had brought it from the Barbary States, and they in turn had received it from Constantinople. The Turk had learned to love it in his original home in Central Asia, where it is still to be seen.

Then he says, Shall we not greet it in Heaven? Who knows? That he loved the lilac saw from the heights of Parnassus fruit trees and palms in paradise.

Shall we not see the lilac in gardens irrigated by that crystal stream which issues from beneath the great white throne. Though there be no morning and no nightfall there, the great sea which lies so calm and still in its glass like serenity, reflects yet the fire of earthly dawns and sunsets. We are certainly not forbidden to dream that under fairer skies and beside more enduring flowers we shall find once more the lilac that cheered our earthly pilgrimage, flowers forever associated with our sweetest joy, our tenderest emotions and our purest faith.

Big Jean Duval.

Jeannot Duval crossed the Canada line and smuggled back a jug of high wine.

Jeannot Duval threw his wife from the door.

Flung the children about the floor; Ran to the wood and cried he would fight.

And whip any beast in spruce-wood white; Lynx or panther, moose-bull or bear; But none came forth to take up his day.

He pulled a young spruce from the ground; Cleared high brush-heaps at a bound; A deer leaped him about and dashed away.

But the good old bear grumbled where he lay; For the old bear dreamt of leafy trees of sweet blueberries and honey bees.

And it made him angry, wakened so; To a dreary world of frost and snow; He started out to find what thing dared to disturb his dream of spring.

Jeannot Duval saw him crawl from his lair; 'Oh, old!' he cried, 'is it you, old bear! Come on, O black one, and I'll show you As out of the shanty my woman I threw!'

The gronse flew nearer to watch the fight; The white hare paused at so odd a sight; The squirrel hopped, as a squirrel can, To see such a tumbling given a man.

To see big Jean a rolling go— Worse than the wife he tossed in the snow! At last the bear was through with him, And Jean was sober and sore of limb; Sadly he took the homeward track, Crept to his wife and besought her back.

'No more' thought Jean, 'will I cross the line; There's trouble for me in a jug of high wine!'

A Five-Act Tragedy.

Act the first: A young man starting off from home; parents and sisters weeping to have him go. Wagon rising over the hill. Farewell kiss hung back. "Ring the bell and let the curtain fall."

Act the second: The marriage altar. Music on the organ. Bright lights. Long white veil trailing through the aisle. Prayer and congratulations of "How well she looks!"

Act the third: A woman waiting for staggering steps. Old garments stuck in the broken places. Marks of hardship on her face. The biting of nails of bloodless fingers. Neglect, cruelty, and despair. "Ring the bell and let the curtain drop."

Act the fourth: Three graves in a dark place—grave of the child that died for lack of medicine, grave of the wife who died of a broken heart, grave of the man that died with despair. "Ring the bell and let the curtain drop."

Act the fifth: A destroyed soul's eternity. No light. No hope. I close my eyes to this last act of the tragedy. "Quick! quick! Ring the bell and let the curtain drop."—Rev. Dr. Talmage.
