Sackville, N. B., Jan. 14, 1880.

The coal area of the N. Y. and A. Co., on which Col. Bennett's mine is situated is one of the most important in the coal series of Nova Scotia. 'It extends easterly from the Maccan River, its seams and metals running an easterly course, crossing on the east side the valuable area owned by Sir Albert Smith, and also the celebrated Styles mine. The seams and coal are therefore, identical on them all., Col. Bennett has lately instituted a new system of mining, whereby, he secures a coal as perfectly clean as possible. Some of it tried at this office, has given every satisfaction. It is good lasting coal and is said to be the only seam in Nova Scotia (except old Mines Sydney) that resembles anthracite in possessing latent heat enough to re-ignite after smouldering eight or ten hours. This is of course a valuable quality for any grate coal.
