THE UNITED FARMERS GUIDE REPUDIATED BY FARMERS OF P. E. I. AS SPECIAL MEDIUM OF DECEPTION, MISREPRESENTATION & SLANDER

The Method Which It Adopts to Mislead the People and Blind the Farmers Amongst Whom It Is Circulated Freely.—A Good Cause and a Sound Argument Does Not Depend Upon Basehood and Hypocrisy to Sustain It —Prince Edward Island, Almost Exclusively Agricultural, Concerns the Political Movement by Which It Has Been Hoped to Deceive the Farmers.

[Charlottetown, N. E. I., Guardian.]

The United Farmers' Guide is a far from the infancy of its career and too young in political life to commence the practice of deception. Hitherto we have given it credit for fairness in argument, which, although opposed to our views, it is always a pleasure to us to meet fairly. It is anything but pleasant to contend with misrepresentation, and our journalism will be the better for sustaining whatever cause it advocates by seeking a plane exalted above this degradation. Now in its days of easier susceptibility is the best time for the Guide to cut out this practice and make for pathways of honor which will surely lead it to better results.

THE GREAT AVERAGE OF FARMERS ARE IN THE ESSENCE OF THEIR NATURE HONEST, THEIR ISOLATION FROM EVIL INFLUENCES AND THE VERY CHARACTER OF THEIR CALLING MAKING THEM PROBABLY MORE SO THAN THE AVERAGE OF OTHER CLASSES. WHILE THEY WANT THEIR OWN LIFE AND SUCH POLITICAL CONCESSIONS AS THEY GET THEY WILL INSIST UPON GETTING THEM BY HONEST MEANS. These farmers constitute the principle clients of the United Farmers' Guide, and if it wishes to make good in whatever campaign it undertakes it must to the full recognize this fact. Any course short of this will discredit them with their own friends and weaken their prospects of success and usefulness in their calling.

To illustrate the intemperate extreme to which the Guide has gone we cite a cartoon published in its issue of September 22nd. In this it represents the consumer standing at a counter with a large pile of tortionnaire profit takers. The first of these is the "Railways," declaring "We must have our dividends 40 per cent." The Guide then tells us there is not a railway in America either aiming after or paying any such dividends, that the average profits on Canadian railways will not ensure a 5 per cent. dividend, and few of any of the best-paying will reach a 10 per cent. basis. They further know that the increase in freight rates was enforced upon the railways by the increased wage schedule involving many millions of additional running costs. Their next picture is the manufacturer insisting that he "must have a profit of 50 per cent." Now a manufacturer will duplicate his output, according to the time he handles, from ten to fifty times within a year, and a profit of fifty per cent. upon his turnover might easily represent a profit of 50 per cent. upon the capital invested. Industrial shares of nearly all these concerns are on the open market and their dividend rates are matters of common public information. Many of these are selling below par, and the great bulk of them paying less than 10 per cent. and in many cases starvation dividends, leaving no excuse for this misrepresentation of the United Farmers' Guide.

The next attack is upon the wholesaler, whom it portrays with a "60 to 65 per cent." profit. If the wholesaler is ignorant of mercantile rates of profit it should not essay to advise, and as in this case, to mislead its readers. Sixty-five per cent. profit forsooth! If our wholesalers could get one half of this they would be in the seventh heavens of the richest commercial happiness. Wholesale and retail dealers of practically every product of commodity are published in the press everywhere, not excluding the United Farmers' Guide in agricultural quotations, and it is an easy matter to inquire out the rates of profit and if should be equally easy to tell the truth about it. The final picture caps the climax of the "ridiculous. It is that of the happy and opulent retailer with his "And no 80 per cent." If it were not for the gross character of the libel upon their business, and the injury it is designed to work, this would surely cause the economies of retailers to assume a broad smile. These combined profits of the Guide's aggregate about 600 per cent. Does the Guide keep a cash store retailing at $65 per barrel or potatoes at $200 per bushel or of sugar at $100 per pound? And yet if the railway, manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer realize their profits as depicted in the Guide, the consumer would be paying somewhere around these figures for his goods.

Oh, it may answer, this is only a cartoon. Yes, and that makes the falsehood the more dangerous because of its attractive and eye-catching presentation. IT IS A DELIBERATE ATTEMPT TO MISLEAD ITS READERS into the belief that the mercantile interests of Canada, men whose interests are less than much else reproach as their detractors, and whose reputation stands fully as high as that of the Farmers' Guide, are in deliberate combination to oppress and rob the people. But then it goes further than the cartoon. In its editorial column, under the heading, "Farmers and Others," it puts these charges in another form. Railways and public utility corporations, it asserts, when they want more profits go to the public boards and get permission to increase rates. Bankers, "through the Bankers' Association," decide "upon higher interest charges," (there has been no perceptible increase in interest) manufacturers "go to the government and get an increase in the tariff (and there has been no increase in the tariff of late); and these it brings into contrast with the farmer, who, it would lead to believe, shoulders all the suffering and inconvenience. The consumer has sympathy for the farmer, but after paying $3 to $4 for potatoes which he often bought for 30 cents, 60 cents for the formerly 20-cent butter, $14.00 for the old $5 a barrel flour, or $3 or $4 for the old-time 50-cent goose, he sometimes figures that our farmer friends are not at least carrying all the disadvantages of the high cost of living.

But such things as these come with in the region of argument, and on which, as on all questions, there are two sides. WHAT WE OBJECT TO IS THE ADVOCACY OF ANY CAUSE BY THE MEDIUMS OF DECEPTION, MISREPRESENTATION AND POSITIVE SLANDER OF OTHERS IN THE VAIN EXPECTATION OF SCORING SOME POLITICAL ADVANTAGE. IT WILL NOT TAKE WITH HONEST PEOPLE, OF WHICH OUR FARMERS MAY BE ACCOUNTED A REASONABLE CLASS; AND IF IT WERE ACCEPTED FOR THE MOMENT THE IMPRESSION WOULD NOT BE LONG-LEAST AND WOULD REACT AGAINST THE ORIGINATOR. There is plenty of room for substantial argument in the recognized platform or policy of any party, without any call for a divergence from absolute truth, AND THE CAUSE WHICH MUST DEPEND UPON FALSEHOOD AND HYPOCRISY TO SUSTAIN IT AND GIVE IT LIFE WOULD SURELY BE THE BETTER

NASHWAAK RIVER AT FRESHET HEIGHT

Many Booms Broken and Logs Went Adrift During Recent Heavy Rains

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)
Nashwaak, N. B., Oct. 4.—The heavy rains of last week caused the Nashwaak to swell to springtime flood, doing much damage to unattended intervals crops. The Nashwaak Pulp & Paper Company also suffered from the freshet; many of their booms were broken by the swift current and some logs went adrift.

Sunday was missionary Sunday in the churches, and appropriate services were held in the various churches. In the Methodist churches of this district there was a general interchange of pulpits: Rev. There does not seem to be much enthusiasm over politics so far as the voters are concerned. The different parties are busy, the rank and file of the voters are quiescent.

John Fowler, of Durham, was among the visitors in town Saturday.

WEDDING

Bird-Burt.

Upper Keswick, Oct. 1.—Last evening a quiet but pretty wedding took place in the Methodist parsonage. Upper Keswick, when Rev. Wm. Lawson united in matrimony the highly esteemed couple in the community. Howard F. Bird, son of Mr. F. Bird, and Annie V. Burt, eldest daughter of Mr. Harley Burt. They were attended by Harley Gliby and Gladys Burt respectively and left the parsonage amid showers of rice.

The happy pair will reside among us. We are glad to say, as many brides are borne away from the community by their "princes charming" to make their homes in distant places. All the friends of the fair young residents wish them a favoring voyage over the matrimonial sea on which they have embarked.

After the wedding the party retired to the home of the bride where a repast just like all know would be prepared by the capable parents was enjoyed by all present.
