The Dying Morris Party.

The Daily News has not yet answered our inquiries. If it has yet apologized for attacks made on Sir Edward Morris previous to 1907, if not, why the editor has not done so, as he now holds that Sir Edward Morris is the legitimate successor of Sir William Whiteway. In those days, according to the Daily News, Sir Edward was nothing but a partisan politician. Mr. Robinson declared in those days that a great gulf was fixed between the statesman and the partisan politician. Now-a-days, according to Mr. Robinson, Sir Edward is pre-eminently the statesman. Of one thing there can be no manner of doubt, no manner of doubt whatever, and that is that Mr. Robinson belongs to the class of partisan politicians. When Sir William Whiteway was in active administration, Mr. Robinson had not a good word for him until Sir William joined the Morison-Robinson group. Before 1907 Mr. Robinson had not a good word for Sir Edward, he only discovered his "brains" and "statesmanship" after Sir Edward joined the Morison-Robinson group, and declared against taking seriously Sir Edward's views on any contract where capitalists were concerned. Yet he took Sir Edward's views seriously as to the mileage of the Branch Railways, their total cost, and the paying of the Contractor in gold instead of bonds.

Our evening contemporary is in a pickle about the Morris party. He cannot get over the fact that thousands of fishermen petitioned for a chance to turn out the Government last year and that Sir Edward Morris was afraid to face the music, knowing that the stakes were the Government and that the people had determined to turn out his Government, and that he would have as little chance of keeping back the tide as he had of restraining the feeling against the Reid Deal. Sir Edward cannot avail of his tactics of 1900 of getting in out of the wet under the wing of Sir Robert Bond, as he did in 1900, and he knows he has to go this time.

Will Mr. Robinson tell us whether his praise and censure of Sir Edward Morris are alike valueless? Is he sincere when he praises the statesmanship of Morris? Is the opinion of the Daily News of Morris of any importance, and if of importance, which set of opinions does the public place any reliance on?

You Can't Do Without 'Em.

A good workman is lost without up-to-date appliances. Office work is hard work without such labor-saving devices as are provided by the Globe-Wernicke Co. Their sectional goods are the last word in perfection, and are the result of many years of specializing in these lines. Both their Book-Cases and Filing Cabinets are necessities in the homes as well as in the offices. Being made in many styles, their appearance as well as their low price, makes them attractive. In the Filing Cabinets all bodies are made of STEEL, and in this remarkable feature they excel over all other makes. What office is free from the danger of destruction of valuable papers by mice and rats? With Steel Files this is impossible. Mr. Stanley Wright will remain in town until Saturday next, and will be pleased to explain the details of these almost unlimited combinations. Why not call up PERCIE JOHNSON and arrange for an interview?

Portia Back.

The S. S. Portia, Capt. J. Kean, returned from her trip to the westward at 7 o'clock last evening. Coming back from Bonne Bay the ship called at Sydney to bunker and at the latter port the round trippers on board the steamer visited the places of interest. All the way south from Channel dense fog prevailed and the ship had to be carefully navigated. She brought the following passengers—Messrs. Malloy, Devereaux, Blandford, Rouse, Trainor, Power; Mesdames Malloy and Trainor; Misses Johnson, Devereaux, Ryan, Hogan, Flemming, four Sisters of Mercy, 24 round-trippers in Standard and 14 second class.

At The Nickel.

Large audiences were present at the Nickel Theatre last evening, and Mr. Myers' rendition of the "Vagabond" was most enthusiastically applauded. Everybody was charmed with it. There will be a change of pictures but the songs will be repeated for the last time this evening.

Football Fives.

The preliminary football fives in connection with the Highland Games, which takes place this afternoon, were run off last evening on St. George's Field.

The Highlanders defeated the C. L. B. by a corner after a close contest. The Collegians got an easy victory over the St. Bon's, winning by three goals.

The B. I. S. lost to the Feildtans by four goals and a corner.

The Casuals went down to defeat to the Stars by three goals and two corners.

The fastest and best exhibition for the evening was between the C. E. I. and Dominions. After a hard and exciting struggle the Bell Islanders secured the victory by a corner.

The finals will be played this afternoon.

McMurdo's Store News.

WEDNESDAY, July 23, '13. Cream of Lilies Soap is excellent as a general toilet soap of high quality and moderate price, without being what is known as "medicinal" it will keep the skin in perfect condition and so prevent the inroads of unsightly and annoying skin diseases. No added coloring matter, perfume pleasant and lasting. Price, 20 cents a cake; box of three cakes, 50 cents.

Bovell's Herb and Gum Salve often seems to do as good work as more expensive ointments. As a household specific for scratches, cuts, burns, eczema and other similar troubles, it has a fine record. Price 25 cents a box.

H. M. S. Cornwall.

His Excellency the Governor has received a despatch intimating that H. M. S. Cornwall will leave Plymouth for Haver Bay as soon as the Naval manoeuvres in Home waters have been completed and the vessel has been refitted. She is due at Haver Bay on August 26th, and will arrive at St. John's on September 6th. The ship will remain here ten days and will leave for Halifax on September 16th.

JUST THINKING.

Jam always attracted little Jim, and he persisted in helping himself, in spite of his mother's orders.

One day she caught him in the act, the jam-pot in one hand and a large spoon in the other.

"Jimmy, you naughty boy!" she said sadly, "Why do you always disobey me and steal the jam?"

Jim's sweet blue eyes turned heavenward, and a little smile stole round his lips.

"I was just wondering, mother, he murmured gently, "What do you mean, child?" asked his exasperated mother.

"Well, mother, I haven't tasted the jam yet," explained the lad, "and I was just wondering if it's nice enough to be whipped for!"

Prince Arthur, of Connaught, has taken a house near York, where he will live after the wedding. It is stated the marriage will take place at Sandringham.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 22.

In anticipation of the re-occupation of Adrianople by Turkish troops, Hadji Bey, former minister of the Interior, has been appointed Governor, and leaves to-day to assume office.

LONDON, July 22.

Suffragettes hired a steam launch to-day, and from the Thames harangued members of Parliament for half an hour. They mounted the cabin roof and abused members as they gathered on the terrace. The police came along in their motor boats and chased them up stream.

LONDON, July 22.

A furious forest fire has been raging for several days, and devastating all the country between Tete Jaune Cache and Fitzburg. It is said to be ten miles in length and two miles wide, travelling with great speed, and threatening great loss of life and property.

EDMONTON, July 22.

Report of the re-occupation of Adrianople by Turkish troops turns out to be false. It was spread by fugitive Bulgarian officials from that city, who, when they heard that reconnoitering forces of Turks, commanded by Enver Bey, had been seen in the vicinity, fled incontinently, under the belief that the entire Ottoman Army was about to descend on the place.

ATHENS, July 22.

M. Panas, director of political affairs in the Greek Foreign Office, has been appointed Chief Greek delegate to arrange terms of peace with Bulgaria. He started for Nish, in Serbia, to-day, and will be joined on the way there by other members of the peace mission.

SOFIA, July 22.

Report of the re-occupation of Adrianople by Turkish troops turns out to be false. It was spread by fugitive Bulgarian officials from that city, who, when they heard that reconnoitering forces of Turks, commanded by Enver Bey, had been seen in the vicinity, fled incontinently, under the belief that the entire Ottoman Army was about to descend on the place.

HALIFAX, July 22.

An unsuccessful attempt was made by the cruiser Sirius, and steamer Seal at 1 p.m. to-day, to pull off the s.s. Beothic at Point Riche. Further attempts will be made at midnight. One or two tanks are full of water. The cargo is undamaged, the coal being thrown overboard. The Dominion Government steamer Stanley left Halifax last night to assist in locating her. The Seal has been ordered to resume her voyage.

LONDON, July 22.

So leaden have been the skies that the s.s. Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse has arrived at Plymouth from New York by dead reckoning. Not an observation could be taken during the 3,000 mile voyage. Wireless reports from other steamers served to keep the big liner from getting lost. She met with no mishap.

WASHINGTON, July 22.

Ambassador Wilson will probably reach here by the end of the week via Havana and Key West, and will report in person on Mexican affairs to the Cabinet, on Sunday. The situation appears unchanged. The battle-ship Louisiana, which sailed from Vera Cruz under rush orders, has arrived at Tuxpan to protect Americans endangered by the fighting between federals and revolutionists.

EDMONTON, July 22.

Word from Explorer Radford, who was outfitted by the Dominion Government, has reached Herschel Island. The bearer of the news was Howard Allan, who has been in the Arctic for four years. Radford had been heard from in Hudson Bay country, but no previous word ever came that he had been at Herschel Island. Allan says a year ago a guide walked into the post at Herschel Island, and laid in a stock of provisions for Radford, who has been in the north country for over four years now, and was making a study of animal life. It was reported two years ago that Radford had gone insane, and that his guides had left him close to barren lands. Allan says the latter report was true, and that Radford's companions, whom he took from Edmonton, deserted him, but he secured native guides and is still continuing his investigations. A note which the explorer sent in to the post at Herschel stated that he intended to work further north, and would probably remain in the north country for another two years.

Asleep For 28 Hours

Delirium and Violence of an Australian After Making Club Swinging

A London paper says: A swinging Indian club for 107 days—without a break at All Saints, Tom Burrows the Australian athlete, went asleep for twenty-four hours—from five o'clock on Sunday morning until 9 a.m. on Sunday morning. Burrows intended to go on swinging for 112 hours, but at the 104th hour his difficulty in keeping awake increased in spite of the divers that were devised for him. His friends suggested the administration of oxygen, but to this he refused consent. As the preparation proceeded he swung the clubs so fast that his wrists resulted in an effort to grasp his wrists resulted in an effort to fall from his hands.

Not knowing what he was doing, Burrows struck a non-commissioned officer a heavy blow on the forehead, and then hit out wildly around him. Eventually, falling from the form among several officers, he fell to the floor and fell asleep. In a while he was carried home sleeping, and he did not wake Sunday morning.

Burrows has established a world record. He has been a club swinger since he was 18, and he is now regularly swinging each day. He had nearly come to the end of his tether shortly after 1 o'clock on Sunday morning, for fatigue made its presence felt by large blisters which first formed on the wrists, then all over his body. I did not want to take oxygen because I did think it would be fair to attain record by its aid.

"I feel much better able to swing a strain since I turned forty. I may be because I have practised regularly since I was 14. The medical profession, both in England and Australia, say I helped my body during my exhibitions by working the clubs in unison with the beats. Doctors tell me that my has not been shortened by my swinging.

Caravanning.

"Caravanning is more nearly akin to yachting than any other open-air pursuit," says the Times reviewing a fine book on "Caravanning and Camping Out," by Harris Stone (Herbert Jenkins, 15s. net). Those who live in a house on wheels, moving at leisure from pitch to pitch, may have a restful pause in green downs, can only achieve comfort by cultivating several of the human's immemorial qualities.

It must be able to interpret designs and warnings; each day is divided up as if it were sea-space, which is necessarily restricted, must be minutely economical, and everybody must adopt a certain order and habits. "It is not surprising to find the pioneer of caravanning, just as was a sailor, the late Gordon-Stables, R. N., who some forty years voyaged by down the highways and by-ways of England and Scotland, and writing his innumerable books mainly adventure for men in making in the cabin of his yacht as it trundled along roadstead to roadstead.

"This godfather of the motor-caravanner was looked upon something of a crank; village stables often contemplated his arrival with suspicion, thinking he belonged to the order of gipsy-posh-rats, show-folk, and other profitable peripatetics. Thanks to the energy and enter of the Caravan Club, which founded in 1907 at Mr. Stone's suggestion, the amateur van-dweller's interests are duly safe-guarded; he can camp out almost anywhere without being moved on or under observation as a suspicious character. The club now has more than 300 members (a third of are ladies).

"The club pennant with monogram of two C's entwined back to back, on a V (originally horse-shoe, but a change was made to please the owners of motor-cars, is now known to all who use King's highway; the van and flies it is welcomed by the mostly farmers, of the frequent camping-places, who profit by playing the visitors with milk, eggs, and other produce. The official list of some 600 pitches and the particulars given to them are extremely useful to the camper. From this list it would be a criterion, that Sussex, shire, Hampshire, Hertford and Devon are the most popular counties."
