HON. GEO. W. ROSS AT MASSEY HALL

Premier Gets a Welcome of Greatest Warmth.

Mr. Ross Tells of Ontario's Growth-Chairman Mowat and Toronto Candidates Give Addresses.

Toronto, May 28 .- A truly magnificent welcome was tendered Hon. Geo. W. Ross by over 5,000 people in Massey Hall last evening. The premier closed a remarkably vigorous campaign with memory of those who were fortunate enough to attend it. Fortunate, because nearly a thousand persons sought in vain to obtain admission to the big building. Every seat on the ground floor, in the two galleries, and on the platform was occupied, and hundreds near the doors throughout the evening. Toronto Liberals, with an admirable devotion and loyalty to their leaders, have held meetings in the past which were a credit to the cause they espoused. But in no particular can last night's gathering be said to take second place to any which have preced-

INTENSE ENTHUSIASM. As for enthusiasm, there has been nothing like the demonstration of appreciation which characterized the gahering of last evening. The order maintained was excellent, and indicated the desire of the intelligent electors to hear a good case plainly put. A few interruptions were heard, but they servalso been removed, leaving clear the ed only to increase the enthusiasm for entire southern half of the river chanthe speakers of the evening. The three candidates in the city constituencies spoke very well and scored many points in their arguments. They stirred the audience to a marked degree, and when Mr. Ross, who followed, rose to speak, an ovation was ac-

PREMIER IN GOOD TRIM. The premier was in excellent trim, in spite of his hard work during the past few weeks. Scarcely a minute passed during his address in which he was not interrupted by loud applause. The enthusiasm culminated when he declared that he had given thirty years the scene which followed this statement was one which made every Libprovince. Mr. Ross eloquently reviewed the course of his government, and pointed to the future with a hopeful ness and an earnestness which were an inspiration to all his hearers. The premier's gift of humor was responsible for many an amusing sally, and he made several hits by his reference to various attitudes assumed by his opponents. Mr. Hugh Guthrie, M. P., made an excellent closing speech. A CONTRAST. The meeting was in striking contrast to that of the previous evening, when Mr. Whitney and his leading supporters in the city held the floor, for the -Mrs. E. H. AN ADVERTISER REPORTER VISITS THE CASHMERE DAM Furniture at Retail!

River Is Obstructed Are Untrue.

HUNDREDS UNABLE TO GET IN DAM NO OBSTACLE TO FISH

Warden Dixon De-Ex-Game fends the Stand Taken by Col. Leys.

An Advertiser reporter, for the purpose of obtaining definite and firsthand information on a much-discussed question, this morning took train for generally called by those living in the neighborhood, and there not only saw for himself the actual condition of the dam, but also obtained the views of the man who probably knows more of Cashmere dam than any other person living. The reporter was also in a position to judge of the present condition of the dam as compared with what it formerly was, as he had visited it just one year ago, when it was intact. At that time the following description of it was penned:

"The much-talked-of dam is a structure nearly 200 feet in width, and its height above the present water level is about four feet. At its southern side the river bank rises in a high and almost perpendicular hill, while on the northern side the ground slopes up more gradually. About 25 feet from the southern end is an inclined runway for logs, 30 feet wide and slightly more in length. This dam is built with stone, faced with timber, and is a most substantial structure, being filled in for some eighty yards back with stone, brush and logs. In summer the water falls so low that all the water goes over the runway, leaving the surface of the dam dry. A DIFFERENT ASPECT. Today the dam presents a very different aspect. The timber apron which formerly extended four feet high across the whole face of the dam, has been entirely removed, and hauled away. Nearly 150 feet of the brush filling of the dam -including the runway for logs-has nel, which is at this point much wider than it is either above or below the dam. The stone in the bed of the river near the dam has been sold for build-

Persistent Reports That the as soon as the water has fallen.
There is no obstacle to the passage of fish up the river save the natural one created by the depositing of sediment above the dam during the 60 or more years which it has been in place. This has raised the bed of the river above the dam some two feet or more above the level of the bottom below the dam, and at lowest water this portion will be bare in places, but in this respect it does not differ from many other portions of the river, which are almost dry in summer; for instance, the stretch from Byron to past Komoka, which in places consists only of pools and rivulets in the middle of the year. This natural obstacle at the dam will remedy itself in year or two, as the river is gradually wearing a deeper channel for itself. The fact that the northern half of the brush filling is left in place will Bothwell, drove three miles to Cash- assist the process of channel-forming, mere, or "Suckertown," as it is more as it concentrates the force of the water on the smaller area instead of spreading it over the whole width of

Ex-Game Warden Michael Dixon, who lives within one hundred yards of Dixon was the builder of the present dam, and was at one time owner of the mills at Cashmere. Of late years he has been as pronounced an advocate of the removal of the dam as any of the farmers along the river, and only one who has interviewed some of them | Sunlight Association," was prominently on the subject can know how earnest were their convictions on the matter. Mr. Dixon, during his years of service, was energetic in the enforcement of the fishery laws, particularly for offenses committed in the vicinity of the lowed by a May-pole drill by the Alexdam. Mr. Dixon said to The Adver- andras. The pole was a picture of tiser: obstacle to the passage of the fish up but when the little ones gathered the river. The people above the dam round it the living flowers quite outhave caught all the fish they wanted this spring—bass, maskilonge, pike and everyone with their sweet voices and pickerel-which is more than they have pretty drills. Col. Leys Miss E. Walker; wand drill, Thursday has done all that man can do to have the dam removed, and he deserves credit for his stand on the matter." Mr. Dixon, it may be remarked, is a Conservative in politics, but he has throughout been an admirer of Col. Leys' course on the fishery question.

At the head of the stairs the art class had a very artistic exhibit of work, and considering the fact that the course consisted of only ten lessons, very much credit is due Miss Auto Powell for the success of the class.
