demned the action of the Bishop of Hereford as "a contravention of letters on the subject. The main argunett used against the bishop's action is the rubric at the end of the con-firmation service, which says that none shall be admitted to the holy communion until such time as he be confirmed or he ready and desirous to be confirmed." The bishop holds with Bishop Creighton that "this rubric was intended solely as a direction for normal cases in our own church and did not contemplate the case of
