TRIES HARD TO EVICT TENANT

Landlord Smashes Windows and Cuts Off Water Without Success.

POLICE COURT HEARS CASE

C. S. Stamatis has been anxious for a C. S. Stamatis has been anxious for a long time to drive away a tenant named T. Martin. Ordinary means of persuasion proving unavailing. Mr. Stamatis proceeded to cut off the water supply at 1 o'clock in the morning. This had no effect, and the next night he playfully shed the windows of the house. Mr Martin still held the fort, and was told that if he did not vacate in a hurry that the window sashes would be the next

This was a little too much for Martin, and he had recourse to the ear of Crown Attorney McKillop, which landed Mr. Stamatin in police court Thursday

Acce ding to the evidence, both men reside in the same house. Stamatis rented half of the domicile to Martin for seven months and has regretted his bargain, which was made in writing and has all the legal trimmings. There was much friction and a lot of anguage around the place, according to

"Well, I can't do any more than bind him over to keep the peace," replied
Magistrate Bartlett in nettled tones.

"This man, he won't pay the rent,"

"That has nothing to do with this case," stated the court. "I am going to bind you over inthe sum of $200 to keep the peace."

After Police Court Clerk Moule had administered the oath, Stamatis stated he did not understand, but his counsel, J. W. G. Winnett, explained matters to his satisfaction.

"Looks to me like an opportunity for a good deal of trouble," said the magis-trate and both the crown attorney and Mr. Winnett nodded assent.
