However, it was thought that the clause in the resolution calling for adequate and licensing would preent the profession of midwifery from becoming a danger. And approval of the resolution was voiced.

Other resolutions on the agenda of the coming national meeting were also discussed. The suggestion that the Canadian government should in-stitute special training courses for mmigrant women to fit them for life in Canada was not upheld was thought that such training should be provided in the old country before immigration.

About Women Jurors.

Federation with the social service ouncil of Canada was approved. A resolution demanding that women jurors form three-quarters of the jury in cases relating to women and children was not considered, since it did not concern the province of Ontario.
