A well dressed man, about 50 years of age, who described himself as George Chapman, an ex-leather dealer of Leeds, Eng., has been trying to swindle a number of our wholesale leather merchants, but owing to his clumsy and stupid methods he was not successful. On Saturday, under various misrepresentations, he purchased over $5000 worth of leather from C. C. Parsons of 79 Front street east. When asked about payment, the stranger said he opened an office in Montreal, and Mr. Parsons could draw on him at three days' sight. Chapman showed a thorough knowledge of the leather trade, but his movements and language were rather off. After he left the store, Mr. Parsons sent word round to the Queen's hotel, where Chapman was stopping, to hotel, where Chapman was stopping to say that unless satisfactory terms of payment were made the goods would not be shipped. In the meantime Chapman had vanished to Hamilton. He went through the same action with the attention went through the same antics with the other dealers besides Mr. Parsons. It is said Parsons is either on recovery from a debauch, it a business crank, or else he takes the leather merchants of this city for suckers.
