The relations between that empire of which Canada now forms an important part and the United States seem to realize part and the United States seem to realize the conditions favorable to progress and peace in the harmless rivalry of two kindred people. It has fallen to the lot of the Canadians to occupy the northern belt of the great continent named after. Americo. It is a tract of country possessing in the central portion magnificent landa, and having in the eastern regions areas comparable to those first settled by the Puritan leaders in New England. It is a region likely from its climate to breed a race of leaders in New England. It is a region likely from its climate to breed a race of great physical power. "Tie the hard gray weather breeds hard Englishmen," said Charles Kingsley, and the descendants of Norman and Saxon show, after many generations in Canada that the blood is by no means deteriorated by the bracing and pure air of their new northern home. Now their territory runs alongside of the United States boundary for about 3000 miles, and States boundary for about 3000 miles, and it may be imagined that in so great a length causes of differences may arise. Yet experience has proved that anything in the way of misunderstanding is capable of explanation and adjustment, and the natural wish and tendency of the people on each side of the line is to commingle and to be good neighbors and relatives. Let us take the experience of the last few years, and in brief survey proceed from west to east. Alaska has been bought by the United States—not a very profitable purchase, but

On the northern boundary river the territories of the two countries are so dovetailed that a rectification of the line is needful, because prisoners to justice are obliged to be taken across places where an escape would mean freedom under international laws. American capital is largely invested in the British coal mines of Vancouver Island, and the American market at San Francisco is supplied with coal at the same rates as those plied with coal at the same rates as tho plied with coal at the same rates as those paid by our own navy vessels and railway lines. Cross over the forest filled valleys of the Cascade range, the cattle pastures near Okanagan and the Columbia as it roars through the gorges of the Rocky mountains, and we come to the province of Alberta, rich in coal and ranches. Of course when there is any dispute between these, the matter is put on the highest and grandest moral grounds, and the desperate and noble efforts to save life in the teeth of heartless and envious antional rules are trumpeted by an intelligent press. It is needless to say that assistance from whatever quarter it comes is welcomed when there is any question of danger to life, and that the Canadians have increased their steamers so that where shipwreck occurs the inles obtaining on

By the free entry of fish from all quarters the price is kept down. By the exclusion of the southern fishermen from Canadian shores the price would rise, which is well known to the New England "salts." A mixed commission might determine what local laws are worthy of being maintained in the common interest of all who wish to use the fisheries, whose value depends on the uncertain movements of the great "schools" of herring, mackerel and cod. No people understand better than do the inhabitants of the Atlantic coast the value of the fisheries and the coast the value of the fisheries. On Saturday in many degree than others. On Saturday in many circles little was spoken of but the respective merits of Chas. Mitchell, champion of England, and John F. Scholes, who probably deserves more than any other man the title of champion of Canada. Some thought Mitchell would walk all over the Torontonian, others better able to judge declared that Johnny would well hold also own and have something to spare in the bargain. An unprecedented progress—a rise of population in ten years on the one side from 45,000,000 to 55,000,000, and on the other from 3,000,000 to 55,000,000. And with the Canadians a wholly new world has been opened, in that a country far larger than the area of the old provinces has been annexed by no force of armsbut by the peaceful pioneers of the plow, and there the number of souls is doubling itself every three years. With this expansion in area a great change is to be observed in their future has aprung into existence. It is no longer a clinging to the old; it is a perhaps overweening expectation in the new.
