

JOACHIM'S LITTLE COUPLET.

Baptist, Baptiste, once so big and so bold
 Has been deposed and is out in the cold,
 He might be a proud and a haughty
 czar
 But he lost his head and went too far.

III. GRADE.

PROFESSOR:—What is the meaning of "gastric"?

GROULX:—The stuff from which we make gas.

ULULATUS.

Get in trim.

Frank being released for the season, says football is too rich for his bleed.

Pat.—Hello Lorne, did you see lap?

Lorne.—No, but I saw Dunlap.

SALUTORY.

With regret we announce to whom it may concern, that the intervention of vacation has robbed us of our treasured Joking editor. The results might have been serious; this column might are now have gasped its last, had not old Camden East sent forth a budding youthful aspirant. Asking you not to be too critical, kind readers, we will immediately introduce to you his first attempt. "THE EDITOR."

Elias headed his unfinished problems "On Light." And the professor "lit on" him.

(At Exhibition Grounds)—Doran.
 —Say mister, boy's half price?

Doorkeeper.—Yes, sir.

B—n—n.—Well give me three tickets, we're a few of de boys.

J. B.—Say, Rod; why have you no bell on your bicycle?

Rod.—Oh, we use dumb-balls up our country.

All persons investing in blacking should be careful that the label reads, "for boots and shoes," and not for stoves and ranges.

Since the return of an old professor, the corridors resound with the
 the new chorus: "On the night walks in New York."

"Don't be uneasy," remarked Pete as he tackled Kelly. "You're in the hands of Providence."

All rejoice to see Bis back. He is just as good as gold.

Alphonse has just returned from the Autumn school, where he lectured on "Universal Comfort."
