BOOK NOTES.

J. Theo. Robinson, Montreal, has issued in neat form: "Letters from Hell," "Letters from Heaven," "The Adventures of Captain John Mackra in connection with the famous pirate Edward England," "The Quick and the Dead," by Amelia Rives (Mrs. Armstrong Chandler), and "From 18 to 20," a pleasant tale. Each at 50 cents.

"History of the New Testament in Words of One Syllable," by Josephine Pollard. George Routledge & Sons, New York and London. This book is printed in fine large type such as may be easily read by children of the age for which it is intended. It is well, profusely illustrated with wood cuts and maps, and has a very attractive cover. It is written in an easy, conversational style, which should please the young people.

CHAS SCRIBNER'S SONS WIN.

The Rev. Edward Towne, of Cambridge, who sought to recover the sum of $10,000 from Charles Scribner's Sons, for work alleged to have been performed in compiling an index for the Encyclopedia Britannica, was awarded the sum of $5,800 by a Boston jury. The defendants petitioned for a new trial, and subsequently, before Judge Holmes, in the Boston Supreme Court, the verdict was set aside, his Honor holding that the damages awarded were excessive.

The expected boom in the paper trade has not yet come off. It is true the mills are all unusually pressed with orders in hand, more especially for cheap printing papers. Several periodicals have announced an enlargement of their sheets, and that, together with increased circulation, has given the mills that have the contracts a lucky addition; and one paper-maker, who holds the orders for one of the metropolitan evening newspapers, has had the quantity so much increased, that by way of diverting some expected orders without refusing them, he has raised the price of his paper an extra eighth of a penny a pound. Otherwise the prices for better class papers remain as they were, but should business improve as much as was hoped for, an advance may be expected before the end of next month. The Stationery Trades' Journal
