JUST PUBLISHED.*Houses of Glass,

By Wallace Lloyd. (Dr. James Algie.)

PAPER 50c. CLOTH $1.00.

"With consummate skill and easy grace, the author works out a great social problem, and teaches us that of all virtues the greatest is charity."—Sunny South.

"He has made his story so actively fertile that all readers will enjoy it for the tale itself, although its value lies in the vitality and truth of the ideas embodied. Human nature as we know it speaks everywhere.
The book is an interesting study of human life."—Boston Ideas.

The Path of a Star,

By Sara Jeannette Duncan. (Mrs. Cotes.)

PAPER 75c. CLOTH $1.25.

It is a suggestive fact that, like Mr. Kipling, Mrs. Cotes has drawn much of the charm and inspiration of her writings from the study of life in India. Mrs. Cotes knows India, its country, its people, its customs, and in this, her latest book, India is the land in which the scenes are laid. In it may be recognized a greater mastery of style and broader sympathy with different classes and types of people than in her earlier books. She appreciates the value of little things as sources of interest and indications of character, into which she displays keen insight. 12 full page illustrations.

The Barrys,

By Shan F. Bullock.

PAPER 50c. CLOTH $1.00.

In referring to works by Mr. Bullock, an English Journal says:

"Mr. Anthony Hope at his best has given nothing more delicious in humor. Surely no more delightful picture of Irish life and Irish people has ever been drawn."
