

mechanisms will not be easy to develop and will vary according to the needs of the particular international activities they serve. They must however be sought if Canada's S&T community as a whole is to fully benefit from the international S&T activities of its government.