

2. When a person who, while serving a sentence in the Requested State, has been found extraditable to the Requesting State for the purposes of prosecution, the Requested State, to the extent permitted by its law, may temporarily surrender the person to the Requesting State in accordance with conditions to be determined between the Contracting States. The period of time spent in custody in the Requesting State shall be subtracted from the sentence that remains to be served in the Requested State.

3. A person who is returned to the Requested State following a temporary surrender may be extradited in accordance with the provisions of this Treaty to serve any sentence imposed in the Requesting State.

ARTICLE XIV

Surrender of Property

1. The Requested State shall, in so far as its law permits, seize and, at the request of the Requesting State, surrender property:

- (a) that may be used in the prosecution of the offence for which extradition is sought; and
- (b) which, at the time of the arrest, is found in the possession of the person sought, or is discovered subsequently.

2. The surrender of the seized property may be delayed by the Requested State for the purpose of domestic proceedings or may be subject to conditions.

3. Any rights that the Requested State or third parties may have acquired in the property shall be preserved. Where these rights exist, the property shall be returned as soon as possible without charge to the Requested State after the trial.

ARTICLE XV

Rule of Specialty

1. A person who has been extradited shall not be proceeded against, or sentenced, for any acts committed prior to that person's surrender, other than those for which the person was extradited, except in the following cases:

- (a) when the Requested State consents; a request for the consent of the Requested State shall, if the Requested State so requires, be accompanied by the relevant documents required by Article VII as well as a record of any statement made by the extradited person in respect of the offence concerned;
