

hearts of the people of Canada. This is a government of task forces. The expression "task force" has now been given a specific meaning like the Holy Writ. I think Your Honour might take judicial notice of the fact that this is a government which operates by task forces.

While there might be some merit in the argument raised by the Minister of Labour (Mr. Mackasey) and the Parliamentary Secretary, I suggest we are a body which from time to time must advance, like the principles of constitutional law, by comparing it with a growing tree. We on this side believe that while the rules are there for the guidance of Your Honour, they must be changed and adapted to the need of a changing society. We are prepared to see Your Honour make some advance in this way and hope you will follow the precedents which have been sanctified by unanimous consent. I think this is a point Your Honour should take into account.

Northern Canada Power Commission Act

Without meaning to prevent other members participating in this interesting debate, I think the Parliamentary Secretary might tell us what we might hope to accomplish tomorrow and Friday.

Mr. Nielsen: Mr. Speaker, I would refer Your Honour to the several inquiries set up by way of motions in 1963, 1964 and 1965. Such matters were referred to bodies which did not exist at that time.

Mr. Jerome: Mr. Speaker, I will simply say there is no intention to change the order of business from that announced by the House leader earlier this week.

At 6.12 p.m. the House adjourned, without question put, pursuant to Standing Order.
