Using a Venerable Varsity President to Scare Off Bank Reform.

The World's articles on the banking question are receiving wide reprinting. A number of readers suggest that they be put in pamphlet form; we even hear of a bank clerks' institution that intends to reproduce some of them in a volume that they are sending out. One of the Vancouver papers has reprinted every article as it appeared, and many of them have been reprinted and quoted, especially in the papers of Western Canada. We are convinced more than ever that the banking question is the real issue now before the Canadian people. We were told the other day of a public man who, a month ago, was saying the tariff was the supreme issue; but after a later survey of the situation he has admitted to colleagues that the main issue to be fought in the next election will concern banking, and it would be a good time to have the voters in Canada instructed on this issue, provided always there be enough men to go on the stump to expound it. But the voters are reading; and the farmers of Canada are now isaming how diligent the American farmer has been in studying banking these last five years.

Our good friends, the financial press, who say they are the poor relations of the banks, are denouncing these articles and quoting from a book by Andrew D. White of Corneil University, exposing the paper money of France at the time of the great revolution; but that event, like the popular song, is a long way to Tipperary. Somebody in Toronto is paying for the reprinting of the White pamphlet. Who? What Mr. Maclean and The World advocate is set out in an article by Mr. Tom King, published in the Canadian press some time ago. The concluding sentences

THE MACLEAN BANKING REFORM PROGRAM. 1. The Canadian Government to supply all currency, based on the credit of the country and further secured by a percentage gold reverve.

2. The government to organize a bank of rediscount, on the lines of the new system of national reserve banks in the United States, for the purpose of making advances in national notes to the chartered banks on approved security.

ity. The government to have a voice in the management of this discount bank and all chartered banks to be member banks and shareholders in it.

3. The banks to be allowed to borrow Dominion notes up to the amount of their paid-up capital at, say, one per cent, interest in place of their present privilege of note issue; all further advances against securities to be at resonable interest charges.

4. The government and the government bank to fix the rate of interest on bank loans. Call loans by banks, if any, to be under strictest regulation.

And all stock exchange borrowing from banks to be under regulation.

5. The issue of securities to be regulated by the government, as well as their flotation by banks. Our readers will notice that this program is a good deal like the banking orms to be inaugurated in the United States a week from Monday next; and much as Mr. Maclean proposes to have a national currency and a bank of scount, his views should not be singled out as financial heresy. For our old riend, Andrew D. White of Cornell, is a warm supporter of the new system in the states, as per his letter, which we herewith append, and which was written by him in answer to a statement that his pamphlet on French paper money was being used in this country by our banks to head off a reform similar to the reform now going into effect in the States:

Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., Oct. 22, 1914.

My Dear Sir: Referring to your letter of yesterday, you are correct in surmising that the main part of my "Flat Money in France" was written long before the recent legislation in the United States was thought of, and I had not the slightest idea of condemning that proceeding; in fact, it seems to me, in view of the circumstances as I understand them, the best thing that Very sincerely yours, AND. D. WHITE.

Dr. White is one of the ablest men of the United States, and one of their mor distinguished and venerable university presidents. The attempt to use his old pamphlet in Canada as an argument against national currency and a national bank

It will be seen from Mr. White's letter that if he denounces the irredeemable paper money of a century and a quarter ago he is very much in favor of a national currency like that coming into effect in the States today. Therefore, if the Canaenough evidence already on record to wardian banks are pretending by this pamphlet that Mr. White is disagreeing with Mr. Maclean's system of currency, they are simply misleading the public. And Colonel Wilkie, president of the Bankers' Association, is a believer in a national bank of

But we have other witnesses to put in the box. Sir George Paish, now at Washington on a financial mission, representing the government of Great Britain is quoted by The Globe of yesterday as praising very much the new banking laws of the United States based on national currency and a national bank of rediscount. This new system, as Sir George points out, will take $580,000,000 out of the reserves provided under the old law and allow the member banks coming under the new law to immediately release and use this enormous sum to alleviate the money stringency.

This new system, as Sir George points out, will take $85,000,000 out of the reserves provided under the old law and allow the member banks coming under the new law stringency existing in the Dutted States today. Mr. W. F. Maclean, M.P., Ottawa, Dear and honored sir: I have just read with a great deal of pleasur and satisfaction an article by you in our Guide, and first published in The BRAMPTON VOTERS' LIST Toronto World. What prompts me to write you is your own remark in that article, where you say: "We may be called a demagog and a limelighter and other things, but we are not going to stop till we win out in this direction." Realizing, sir, that you are only a man, and that you are attacking a mighty big proposition, I thought it my duty to write and tell you that we westerners appreciate the kind of stuff you are made of, and it is men of your type we are looking for as leaders. We know, sir, that it takes nerve, wisdom and a good stiff backbone to take the independent stand which you have always taken in the face of the traditions and precedents of the past, on all questions of practical import to the people. But we admire you for it, it is a case of "Him whom having not seen, we love." A true westerner cannot help loving a man of your type. And if it is any encouragement for you to know, there are hundreds and thousands of the great common people with you in spirit and with their humble efforts in their smaller spheres

I always like to think of when La Follette made his first great speed in the United States Senate, and all the senior senators got up in a body and left the room. He continued his speech for one hour to empty seats, knowing there were those in the lobby who would carry his speech to those for whom it was intended. Continuing his speech he said: "Gentlemen. The seats now temporarily vacated by those whose privilege it is to occupy them shall be permanently vacated by them in — years if they do not attend to these burning questions to which I would call their attention." And the number of years which he mentioned had not passed away before those same senators were political fossils. Among those fossils are Senator Aldrich and Speaker Cannon and many of their followers—men of the same type who represented the interests and not the people.
