

A new edition of the first volume of the history of the United States, published by the author, in 1850, and revised and enlarged by the author, in 1855.

THE FIRST PART

The first part of the history of the United States, from the discovery of the continent by Christopher Columbus, in 1492, to the establishment of the first permanent settlements, in 1607. This part of the history is divided into three periods: the first, from 1492 to 1607, the second, from 1607 to 1776, and the third, from 1776 to 1800. The first period is characterized by the discovery of the continent, the establishment of the first permanent settlements, and the discovery of gold in California. The second period is characterized by the discovery of gold in California, the establishment of the first permanent settlements, and the discovery of gold in California. The third period is characterized by the discovery of gold in California, the establishment of the first permanent settlements, and the discovery of gold in California.

The second part of the history of the United States, from the establishment of the first permanent settlements, in 1607, to the establishment of the first permanent settlements, in 1776. This part of the history is divided into three periods: the first, from 1607 to 1776, the second, from 1776 to 1800, and the third, from 1800 to 1850. The first period is characterized by the establishment of the first permanent settlements, the discovery of gold in California, and the discovery of gold in California. The second period is characterized by the establishment of the first permanent settlements, the discovery of gold in California, and the discovery of gold in California. The third period is characterized by the establishment of the first permanent settlements, the discovery of gold in California, and the discovery of gold in California.