

boundaries to determine the boundaries of states; the independence of Poland; the exclusion of the Turk from Europe; the end of secret diplomacy so that never again shall the declaration of war rest with a few diplomats who deny to the people any voice in a national step that plunges the nation into a welter of blood and sends all the waves and billows of sorrow over the people's soul.

An examination of these terms—reflecting as they do the thought and conscience of the people—reveals at least these three conditions involved in peace with honor.

BASED ON RIGHTEOUSNESS

1. It must be a peace that is based on righteousness. True peace is only reached where justice is secured. "Behold a king shall reign in righteousness." It is only when our differences are settled with a due regard for righteousness that we reach the solid ground of peace. It is for that reason that the world demands that German militarism shall be destroyed for it is this spirit that has sinned against Europe. It is for the same reason that
