FIELDER JONES' BROWNS

HAVE REASON TO BOAST

Two No-Hit, No-Run Slab Artists on St. Louis Pay-Roil.

The records show that every club in the American League except Washington has had, at one time or another, a no-hit pitcher on its staff, and some of them have had the bonor of two such occupants of the Hall of Frame. but no club except the Browns can boast of a pair of pitchers who, like Ernie Koob and Bob Groom, have each pitched a no-hit game within two days and against the same opposing team Koob held the White Sox without a safety on Saturday, May 5, and the vernext day Groom repeated the dose. Though there has been a dispute as a hard-hit ball against lim the scorers claiming a scratch hit should have been recorded, there is no denying the class of his work, while Groom, his same, never gave anyone a chance to raise an issue, for there secreely was always been effective against the White Sox, but Groora, except when he was always been effective against the White Sox, but Groora, except when he was with Washington, has not been, and that makes his performance against the more noteworthy.
