Before leaving his home here he had announced his intention of becoming a soldier as soon as he passed his 19th herthday borthday. A younger brother, Ray, enlisted with the 33rd Battalion and reached England. He was not allowed to go to the trenches, as he was under age. Because of this, Lloyd decided not to enter the army until he was eligible for all phases of the service. He was 19 years old in July, but as the harvest season was at its height his employer persuaded him to remain for a few weeks.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by two brothers, George and Raymond of this city, and one sister, Lillian of Windsor.
