PRESBYTERIANS TO SOLV

Rev. J. M. Macdonald described the work of St. Andrew's Institute and the way in which the down-town problem is overcome there, and Rev. Dr. Mc-

Trankle Armstrong, aged 14, 131 Sumach-street, and Walter Goodwin, aged 12, 87 Sumach-street, are two of a bunch of four youngsters who were arrested last night on the charge of inflicting torture upon Fulton Wood, a 10-year-old lad in their neighborhood.

The quartet wanted some cigarets and tried to force young Wood, so, he says, into stealing money with wisich to buy them, by tying him up against the wall in a stable and holding lighted matches to his fingers.
He promised, and led the way to his sevn home, 93 Sumach-street, which his family had only recently moved into. As soon as he got safetp inside he put his thumbs to his nose, crying at the same time for his mother, and
the boys scattered.

Tavish explained the present requirements of Cooke's Church, which were an assistant pastor, workers who could devote their whole time to the work, and adjoining building which could be used for purposes similar to those of the St. Andrew's Institute.

"If Presbyterianism is worth its salt in Toronto," said Dr. McTavish, "it will stand by Cooke's Church." Rev. J. D. Morrow spoke for St.
Mark's Church. A valuable work, he said, was being done there, but much better equipment was required.
