CROWDS ENJOY GOOD RACING.
Rowing Races in Courtenay Bay a Grand Success—Events Well Contested.

The second of a series of aquatic sports, which were under the auspices of the Commercial Club, was a complete success in every detail. About 5,000 people lined the shore and there were about one hundred small craft dotting the waters of Courtenay Bay.

The four-oared race was won by the Renforth crew, who were closely followed by the senior singles with Robert Belyea second. The junior singles were won by Grenville McCavoy, who badly worsted Anthony Belyea, the other starter.

The officials were taken on board Nagle and Wigmore's tug the Lord Beatty, in command of Captain Frank Stevens, at the Eastern Steamship Lines wharf and shortly after her arrival at the bay the races were started.

The first event was the four-oared race in which the starters were the Belyea crew, composed of Hilton Belyea, Charles Campbell, William Lanyon and Robert Belyea; the Renforth crew composed of George Wetmore, J. Fleming, H. McLeod and H. Silliphant; and the Stackhouse crew composed of the four Stackhouse brothers. The start was made off Union street. The Renforth crew won by about four lengths; time 10 minutes 20 seconds.

The juniors rowed over a three-quarters of a mile course finishing off Union street. McCavoy won in 9 minutes 45 seconds. In the senior singles Hilton Belyea won in 10 minutes 48 seconds.

The events were run off promptly and there were no delays. Much credit is due Frank White for arranging the sports and the officials conducted them in a capable manner. Thanks are due Messrs. Nagle and Wigmore for the use of their tug the Lord Beatty.

The officials were as follows: D. C. Clinch, referee; Peter Clinch, J. C. Gregory, Thomas Nagle, Mayor Schofield and H. R. McEllan, judges; H. Ervin and H. W. Stubbs, timers; J. C. Chesley, starter; G. A. Stull's, announcer; J. Fred Belyea, clerk of the course.

BIG KITCHEN FEEDS 1,000 CHILDREN

Takes Care of Youngsters in Summer Time—Health Crusaders Fight Malnutrition and Bring Happiness to City's Charges.

In the big kitchens of the Ethical Culture School, Central Park West, New York, filled today with the savory odors from giant kettles of steaming vegetable soup and stewed apples and other good things, is the focal point of the work being carried on by New York's summer play schools. Most important of all the details in the long day's programme of health building is the selection, preparation, and distribution of proper food, and for all but one of the five schools it is done entirely from these same kitchens. Some thousand or more lunches is a large order, but they are ready every day in the appointed places at just twelve o'clock.

Miss Winifred Stuart Gibbs, dietitian in charge of the kitchen service, was asked to tell how she manages all this at a cost of only twenty cents per lunch, including overhead charges.

Fifteen cents goes toward the actual cost of each lunch, and it provides a nourishing and tempting menu. The other five cents is to pay cooks, etc. There is a soup, made with fresh vegetables or dried vegetables, or on alternate days a hot dish, such as baked rice or macaroni and cheese or salmon loaf. With this are served two sandwiches, and because of the large field that is covered by the word Miss Gibbs explained that these sandwiches are made of slices from the largest sliced loaves, one of them spread with butter and one with some sort of jam, or marmalade. There are conditions attached to it—the most substantial part of the lunch must be eaten before any claim is made to the dessert. Milk is served with every lunch.

Many Nationalities in School.
The three hundred children at this play school are of many nationalities—Greeks, Austrians, Armenians, and many others. They are all brought here by their parents, and they are beginning to like the American way of life.

But Miss Gibbs says that there is no need for undue agitation over this penitential for coffee, since one child told her two teaspoons to seven cups is the recipe accepted in her home, and the proportion of coffee to sugar is generally considered correct.

Mother's classes are conducted at the play school to consider the matter of proper home diet, and Miss Gibbs said that the interest taken by these women is a good indication of what is being accomplished. Most of the work, however, is done directly with the children.

The "health fairs" from the Ethical Culture School have been a success. The health fairs from the Ethical Culture School have been a success. The health fairs from the Ethical Culture School have been a success.

Dr. Edwin Sherrard Rimer of the New York Nursery and Child's Hospital, comes each week to the Ethical Culture School to talk to the thirty most serious cases of malnutrition in the play school and to supervise their cooking menus for breakfast and supper, to be prepared in conjunction with the lunch menus at the school.

The two-man team event, twenty-five tags, showing normal weight and present weight, and as the days go on these figures come nearer together. A tag experiment will be tried out soon, when each child will receive a list of suitable menus for breakfast and supper, to be used in conjunction with the lunch menus at the school.

Greater Co-operation.
Miss Alice M. Paine, director of the school, said that all the welfare organizations in the city are gradually getting together in the matter of child care during the summer months, the importance of which is now realized. The play school can care for a pitifully small proportion of the half million said to be cast on the streets of New York, but Miss Paine is certain that the time is coming when there will be places for the entire half million. Three found their way in for a day at least while she was talking, for they came with the announcement that "Mother has gone away and says she can't stay, please."

For those few who, because they were the most underweight and undernourished children, were being sent to the play school, the play school has much to offer. There is instruction in the arts and crafts, play and exercise under supervision, and a fine spirit of fraternity for the big girls are industriously working on rompers for the kindergarten, and the kindergarten would do so much for them if it could. They have at least an hour each day on the roof or in the park and a day each week in the open country. And they have the good lunches that come out of the kitchens.

In this connection there is one thing that troubles the dietitian and her staff and the volunteers who come in each day to help serve the lunches. They want to see more fresh fruits and vegetables on those long wooden tables, and on 15 cents it simply can't be done. It is only once in a while when these things are donated that the diet can be thoroughly rounded out, and consequently there is nothing more appreciated than such donations.
