OPPOSITION WEAKENS; FOREGATHER IN VANS

Has Its Initial Outing.

The fact that the opposition leader at an early hour Saturday morning yielded sufficiently to let part of the item for salaries to customs officials go through ($1,705,000 for outside salaries) although earlier in the week positive statements had been made by Mr. Foster and other leading obstructionists that not one dollar would be voted, indicates that Mr. Borden is already beginning to fear that the present factics are being "overdone." However, even the backdown to that extent was largely because Mr. Borden had again temporarily taken the reins in his own hands. Mr. Foster himself was unwilling to pass the amount, but was overruled by his titular leader.

Tomorrow the government will again attempt to get supply for the remaining customs estimates. Later on the election bill will come up again and the issue now dividing the two parties will be again squarely put before the country. Manitoba Liberal members will be able to fortify their demands for some protection against the Roblin government's complete control of lists in that province by citing some flagrant instances of manipulation in connection with the new lists now being prepared.

No Money For Charwomen

One strong influence now making itself feit in the direction of accelerating the opposition's backdown is the outcry that is beginning to arise among divil servants and others throughout the country aggregating several thousands, who are directly affected by the present stoppage or payments of federal treasury. In Ottawa, for instance, the 138 charwomen engaged in keeping the monthly salary. The laborers employed in connection with the buildings also got only one-third of the monthly salary. The laborers employed in connection with the buildings also got only one-third of the monthly salary. The laborers employed in connection with the buildings also got only one-third pay. The effect of the action of the opposition in holding up the salaries of civil servants is felt particularly keenly in cases like the above, and the way they are expressing their disguet is not calculated to impress the opposition with like idea that votes are being made by the present tactics. Conservative canvasers in the provincial election campaign in Ottawa are beginning to report that civil servants of Tory proclivities who are feeling the present ginch of lack of any ready money are declaring they will not vote for the candidate of any party so stupid as to unnecessarily hold up pressing, and absolutely non-contentious items—the estimates.

PRIVATE VISITS.

Both the King of Italy and the Emperor of Austria hate fuss and ceremony, and whenever possible dispense with the retinue which is usual on the occasion of official visits. King Alfano's dislike for ceremony is, of course, well known, and he has caused his ministers and advisers many anxious fusions. There is nothing five here are two dimensions, and the way to save the constantly attended by sevents. There is no thing the present divides who are feeling the present served the constantly attended by sevents. There is no thing the present provided the present possible.

His special train gives some idea of the display which is made. It is the most luxurious railway conveyance in the world. There are two dining-rooms, each with its own special kitchen, a library, saloons, bath, bed, and dressing rooms, all luxuriously fitted up. No fewer than thirty-two locksmiths, machinists, cleaners, and other mechanics accompany this royal caravan on all its journeys, under the command of a special engineer.

In this respect the Kaiser resembles the Shah of Persia and the Sultan of Turkey, whose visits to foreign courts are not usually keenly anticipated by those whose duty it is to see that everyone connected with these foreign potentates is comfortably housed. The attendants and servants usually number about one hundred, and to suitably accommodate them all is no easy task. The visit to this country of Queen Alexandra's sister, the Dowager Empress of Russia, and the quiet, unconventional manner in which these royal ladies have spent the last few weeks, well illustrates the manner in which the Czar would like to travel and pay visits. But the Russians love display, and the Czar's advisers consider that there would be something seriously lacking in His Majesty's dignity did he not travel with as much dignity as Getting the bird, writes a correspondent, need not always prove a source of woe to the unfortunate actor, but there are still some nations that express their applause by hissing. The Basutos, for instance, and the natives of the New Hebrides employ this method of expressing their admiration, Even among ourselves any interruption of the actor who grips our attention is quelled with the hissing "Hush!"

tion of the actor who grips our attention is quelled with the hissing "Hush!" which is intended to silence the interrupter and show our admiration for the interrupted. On the whole, authors and actors of today have reason to congratulate themselves upon the disuse of many of the ancient Greek methods of showing dissatisfaction at the theatre. The worst that a playwright must reckon dissatisfaction at the theatre. The worst that a playwright must reckon with now is an ironical cry of "Author!" followed by a booing demonstration. But it is on record that the Athenian audience at least once forcing ejected an unsuccessful comic poet from the theatre. The pelting of bad actors with vegetables and questionable eggs is rare now even in the remotest provinces. But the Athenianse did not draw the line at figs and olives as missiles. Aeschines was said nearly to have been stoned to death during his stage career and there is a story of a second rate musician who borrowed a quantity of stone from a friend to build a house with, promising to repay the loan with the stones collected at his next performance.—London Chronicle.
