A Missionary's Son Fallen

A cable received this week announces the death in the Duchess of Connaught Hospital, Clivesen, Eng., of William Cassels Buchanan, of the Royal Canadian Engineers, as the result of a shrapnel wound received while fighting "somewhere in France." Sapper Buchanan was the son of Rev. J. Buchanan, M.D., of Amhhut, Central India, who has been braving the burning of that country for 27 years, that he might "do his bit" in uplifting the native Bhils through the spreading of Christianity among them.
