It is remarkable that all the four see chosen and scentarily belong to the sentation of the s New Brunswick chose their own representatives. It is remarkable that all the four so chosen and accepted belong to the famous 107. It remains to be seen whether the new Government is as strong as its oriends could wish. It is said that direatly several of the old supporters of the Government afair trial. On the other hand there are some members of the old Opposition who doubt whether the principles for which they have made such extraordinary circumstances will probably preak up his party, and the place-holders and difficulties always beset the way of a new idministration. Mr. Tilley's appointment to the Lieutenant-Government to the selection of the swhole case was a masterly exposition. Mr. Tilley's appointment to the Brunswickers in Lieut. Governorship under such extraordin ary circumstances will probably break up his party, and the placeholders and placesekers will hasten to worship the new by risen sun.—Mr. Anglin's letter (Nov. 7) in Freeman.

The Liberal dodge, we predicted the other day has been resorted to. The organs of the Grit Government are full of articles, paregraphs and telegrams urging the Liberals of the Maritime Provinces to adhere to the Government, and declaring that the old party lines hrve been drawn.

The News announces that the rumor that Mr. Willis is feeling the county with the view of opposing the Minister of Customs is without foundation.

It has been a matter of complaint that the salaries paid to Canadian officials in the Maritime Provinces, and particularly in this city, have been much lower than the salaries paid to officials in Canadian officials in the Maritime Provinces, and longer than the organs of Mr. Mackanzie's Government. Before the resignation of Sir John Macdonald and hiscolleagues they put in effect a long-promise dreform in this matter, raising the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries will all be represented, and we have chartered the steamer that the provinces are a long-promise dreform in this matter, raising the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries of officials in St. John to something like the salaries of officials in St. John t

Dear Sir: I and the rest of us would like to know from you if John Doyle will live or not, and to hear if he will be let go at large. If so, let me know right away. He was very ugly with his wife when they were here, about three weeks ago. I did not think he would kill her. I think he has killed somebody before, and she knew it. I think it worked on his mind so that he could not stand it any longer, so he thought he'd take her down there where we would not know it. He may feign to be a little out of his head, but he was not; and if he gets clear he may come back and kill one or two more of our family. Do not let him at large, for he had no reason to kill her. Please write and let me know how matters are, so that I may know what to do. Her affectionate brother,
