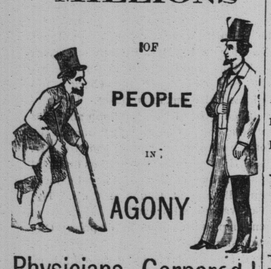
MILLIONS



OF PEOPLE IN AGONY

Physicians Cornered!

I SUPPOSE there is not in the whole of a physician's experience, anything in human suffering which calls forth his sympathy, and pity, to such an extent, as to witness the excruciating pains of a poor mortal, suffering from that fearful disease,

RHEUMATISM!

Heretofore there has been a considerable diversity of opinion among medical men, as to the true character of this disease. Some locating it in the fibrous or muscular tissues of the system, and others viewing it as an acute nervous disease: but it is now generally admitted to be a disease arising from a poison circulating in the blood, and further it is admitted that Rheumatism can never be thoroughly cured without exterminating such poisonous matters from the blood, by a constitutional internal remedy. We feel confident that none will feel better satisfied and rejoice more, than the conscientious physician, who has found out that a cure for this stubborn disease has been discovered. The following testimony from a gentleman of standing, and high respectability, and well known to the Canadian public, cannot fail to satisfy all that the

is a wonderful medical discovery.

MR. ISAACSON'S ENDORSATION.

MONTREAL, 21st March, 1874.

Messrs. DEVINS & BOLTON,

Dear Sirs,—I, with pleasure, concede to the agent's wish that I give my endorsation to the immediate relief I experienced from a few doses of the Diamond Rheumatic Cure, having been a sufferer from the effects of Rheumatism, but now, after taking two bottles of this medicine, entirely free from pain. You are at liberty to use this letter, if you deem it advisable to do so.

I am, sirs, yours respectfully,

JOHN HELDER ISAACSON, N. P.

FURTHER PROOF.

I AM ANOTHER MAN!

ST. JOHN, N. B., Sept, 29, 1874.

A. CHIPMAN SMITH,

Dear Sir,—I have suffered for fifteen months with Chronic Rheumatism, and could not find any relief, after trying every medicine that I saw advertised to cure it, until I was told about the Diamond Rheumatic Cure. I have used three bottles of this valuable remedy, and now can say that I am another man to what I was. I would advise anybody suffering with this terrible disease to to try it, and see if it does not do the same for them that it did for me.

Yours,

JAMES L. BAGNEZ,
Indiantown.

BARNES' HOTEL,

ST. JOHN, N. B., Sept. 29 1874.

A. CHIPMAN SMITH,

Dear Sir,—I have great pleasure in stating that I put every confidence in your Diamond Rheumatic Cure. I have suffered for the last two years with Rheumatic Pains, during which time I have had the advice of some of the most prominent medical men in the Province, and experienced no relief, until I tried the Diamond Rheumatic Cure. I have now taken three bottles, and I feel greatly improved, and now am confident of a permanent cure.

Yours truly,

JAMES O'BRIEN.

There is no medicine which so promptly relieves the depressed vital action, restores the general and local circulation, allays the pain, dissipates the congestion, prevents inflammation, and restores the healthy action as the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE!!

This medicine is for sale at all the druggists through Canada. If it happens that your druggist has not got it in stock ask him to send for it to

THE KING OF NO-LAND. (See 4th page.)

Horrors of Brigandage.

The romance of Italian brigandage has received a fresh illustration in a trial recently in progress at Naples, where eight brigands were accused of many assassinations, of extortions with violence, of cutting off ears, noses and other parts—charges sufficient, one would think, to sink them tolerably low in the bottomless pit. Capt. Allano was the chief of this gang of cut-throats, and Maria Parente, a young and attractive girl, the one attracting most attention. During the trial the prisoners were enclosed in a cage with iron bars, so great was the apprehension their presence awakened. Allano and his band formed a portion of that of the once celebrated Cappucino, and his appearance in court was well calculated to strike a panic into many of the witnesses who had suffered from his brutalities, for his dress was that which he wore on his lawless expeditions, and he only wanted the pistols and the dagger in his red girdle and the double-barrelled gun thrown over his shoulder to make the character complete. As showing of what brutalities the band were capable, it is charged against them that on one occasion they attacked sixteen men whom they found together in the mountains and murdered them all in cold blood. One of them being asked for his money said he had none, but would sell everything to procure it. This did not satisfy the tigers, who knocked him down with an axe, fired two revolvers at him, and as he was still palpitating, struck off his head. Another trying to escape, was fired at and brought back to the spot where the others had been murdered; there he was pierced by their daggers and shot. Francesco Volta alone was spared, and ordered to return to Marsico-Nuovo and report how his companions had been punished.

Paris Soup Houses.

Apropos of the subject of providing soup for the poor, a Paris correspondent has something to say about the soup kitchens of the French metropolis, which are again open for the winter. There are two great charitable societies there, the eldest of which, the Philanthropique, dates back a century. For five centimes (half a penny) it supplies a half litre of dry cooked vegetables, or seventy grammes of cooked meat, or four decilitres of bouillon, or ten centimas' worth of bread at bakers' rate for the day. The tickets are sold to charitable persons at ten centimes, but there is a considerable loss, which is repaid by the subscriptions. This society has seventeen kitchens; the other, that of St. Vincent de Paul, has twenty-five, of which five are open the whole year round. It is entirely in the hands of the clerical people. No money is taken here, and the poor wretch who can get a ticket given him receives no less than 100 grammes of cooked meat or half a litre of bouillon, or half a litre of cooked vegetables, or ten centimes worth of bread at bakers' rate. The two societies delivered last winter more than 3,000,000 plates. The 23 kitchens established by Mme. DeMcMahon served 2,000,000 portions more. Curiously enough, it is the kitchen set in the very richest quarter which did the most business last year. This is supposed to be a compliment to the skill of its cooks, who are Sisters of Charity. Besides its kitchens, the Philanthropic Society has given away 12,000 f's. worth of medicines from its six dispensaries, where the doctors attend gratis, has nursed 200,000 sick persons, and has raised and spent over 7,000,000 francs for the poor. It has one office only. One person manages this great society, except when pressed with work, and then he occasionally begs the help of his mother.

Jules Verne's Play.

Apropos of the recent production in Paris of a dramatized version of Jules Verne's "Tour of the World in Eighty Days," a Paris correspondent gossips entertainingly about the drama and its author. The play is the sensation of the hour, and every night the house is crowded. Of course, the story of Phileas Fog and his bet of a million to make the tour of the world in eighty days has been made familiar to American readers of M. Verne's book. The play consists of a series of tableaux of different countries, the Indian pictures giving a wide scope to the scene painter and the costumers. Jules Verne, one of the most popular writers of the day, is now 46 years of age. He is of middle height—say five feet nine—and wears a full beard. He looks a little like the portraits of Alfred De Musset, but without the sickly, melancholy look of the poet. Verne is bronzed by the air of many a sea voyage, and is the very picture of health. His movements are quick and nervous, his words crisp and short in conversation, and his eye roving and observant. His hair is white and his beard gray. He is the owner of a small skiff, and spends hours in pulling about upon the river, and on the sea in summer. He has a yacht also, with ten sailors on board, and makes voyages every season about the coast of France. But he is not the only traveller of his family. His brother (Paul Verne) made the fortieth French ascension of Mont Blanc, and came near losing his life. Jules Verne makes Dr. Ox tell the story in one of his books. Jules Verne's books now sell better than any others, and yet he had a very hard struggle at first, although he had Alexander Dumas for his friend. For twenty years he was a frequent visitor to the house of the author of Monte Cristo, but it is of late that his works have become universally popular.

"Willie, I'm going to heaven," she wrote, "and you will never see me again;" which was pretty heavy on Willie.

The movement for the establishment of an Old Catholic Congregation in London has ended in failure because of the limited number of persons who were found willing to take part in it. The scheme was commenced by a small circle of Anglican clergymen and laymen, most of whom had been to "Rome and back." They expected to receive a large number of favorable replies from discontented Roman Catholics, but very few answers were recovered, and scarcely any of them seemed to be from Catholics,
