

AT FESTIVAL OF THE ARTS

Making Art Films Featured

Ronald Thom, the architect who designed Massey College and drew the master plans for Trent University was on campus last Friday as part of the University's Festival of the Arts.

He described how universities should be designed to promote the maximum of community living. He said that this can be facilitated by using room clusters around stairwells, in blocks or in circles.

He showed slides of Trent University which showed how the campus developed from the nucleus of the library and the student centre.

During the question period he was asked to explain the difference in cost in building and maintaining Massey College where each student has two rooms to himself as compared to the facilities available here. He said that the difference was negligible.

Modern and traditional designs could be mixed very well he said. As an example he described St. Catherine's College in Oxford.

Many professors were in attendance at the Festival but students were absent. Most noticeably absent were those from the housing committee and the Student Union Building Committee.

The Festival will continue this Friday when Gerald Budner will speak on the production and direction of an art film. He will deal with the film David Milne, especially.

"THE TELEPHONE CALL..."

by Ed Ball

"Hello. Is this the LBJ Ranch? May I speak to the President, please? Hello Lyndon, this is Charlie. What? Oh you know...J.C. ... No, not that J.C. ... the one from New Brunswick. I met you through Bobby. No, not that Bobby! ... it was Bobby Baker. Oh, you don't remember him...well, anyway... I'm down here visiting the ranch of a friend of mine. What ranch? Well, it's really not a ranch...it belongs to a Mexican sharecropper I met through Adam...yes, THAT Adam! Oh, you don't...well, anyway, what I wanted, Lyndon...Oh, you do... well then Mr. Johnson, what I wanted was a favour. I wondered if I might have my picture taken with you...I want it as a present to give to Louis...yeah, the one you met in Campobello...yes, THAT island. You will? Gee, that's great. And would you autograph it for me? Swell! Do you think that 'CHARLIE BIRD' would be too personal? Oh... And one more thing, do you suppose you could lend me one of your Western hats...I gave all mine away. Of course, I'll pay you for it! ... right after I get back from the bank. Well, I sure do appreciate your help...after all, we're both old campaigners...Where did I learn to campaign? Well, I was a big help to Ronald out there in...Yes, that's right, 'Sunny Ronald'...Sure I helped him... Mr. President? Hello...hello...?"

university grounds, and is building a $5,750,000, 20-storey residence building scheduled for completion in June of 1968.

Known as Rochdale College, this triple-towered structure will house 600 single students, 100 married couples and 50 faculty members. It is expected Rochdale eventually will become an educational, residential college.

One of the big incentives for building new residence co-operatives is coming from the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. In 1966, a change in mortgage loaning permitted student residences to become eligible for CMHC money.

The Crown corporation now backs 90 per cent of a student residence mortgage, with private lenders furnishing the rest. A $1.5 million, 15-storey married students' co-op at Dalhousie University scheduled for completion in September is being built under this legislation, and students there say their residence dream wouldn't be near reality without the CMHC mortgage.

Some campuses are showing signs of getting into the co-op housing business in a big way these days while others are not. Here is a partial summary:

University of British Columbia: Last fall, UBC's students society announced plans to hire an architect, borrow between $500,000 and $1 million and build a co-op. At UBC, it was reported last fall there were 1,400 students waiting for university-sponsored housing and an additional 5,500 looking for homes off-campus.

University of Alberta: In Edmonton, University provost A.A. Ryan says, "If students can come up with a scheme for co-op housing and show it to be financially feasible, it's all to the good of the university."

MISS CANADIAN UNIVERSITY FROM MEMORIAL

WATERLOO (CUP) - A second-year biology student from Memorial University has been named Miss Canadian University at Waterloo Lutheran University.

Linda Inkpen was crowned Friday after a full day of interviews with five judges, who selected her ahead of 19 other campus beauties.

CO-OPS ACROSS THE COUNTRY

Students and university administrators alike are finding there are no simple solutions to their housing problems these days.

University-sponsored housing projects are steadily becoming more difficult to finance, more expensive to build and always difficult to keep out of the red.

Rising labor costs, skyrocketing enrolments and tight-fisted university governors are blocking the road to residential campuses in Canada.

But this gloomy picture is being changed somewhat by the spread of co-operative housing projects across the country, as more and more student governments and university administrations work together following the lead set by universities like Waterloo and Toronto.

Campus co-operatives are nothing new. Twenty-nine years ago at the University of Toronto, Campus Co-operative Residences Inc. began operations with a rented attic and a few army cots.

Today, the corporation owns more than 50 dilapidated Victorian houses scattered around the outskirts of the
