Fred sells rye and wheat. The peak of his cap is torn. Does he ever use hair dye? There is some weak lye in a pail.—We leave school at four o'clock. Men weave carpet in looms. A giant heaved two sheep on his back.—Honey is made by bees. Rye flour is used for bread. Monkeys play many funny tricks. Did you lose any money?—Dick speaks of going away. His train leaves at eight o'clock. When ill and weak he uses honey. A weaver made heaps of cloth. He dyed some cloth red.

The dumb child feels tired. She likes to stroll near the river. She often watches men troll for fish. The storm made much foam on the water. Our boat leaves at twelve o'clock.—A crowd watches a droll monkey. Now he is ngry, hear him scream. Have you ever seen him crying? Fred rolls an iron hoop along the street. He covers his throat before he leaves home.—Cattle are cheap, yet meat is dear. Use plenty of cream and honey with your bread. Clear the carpet of crumbs. Baby shakes a rattle. This lye is too weak to make good soap.—John reads a tale about giants. In a battle one giant lost a thumb and both eyes. He had great heaps of money in gold and silver. Hear the dogs growl! They are watching a goat and some sheep. Are they afraid of lions?
