BOOK REVIEW.

"HORSE BREEDING."

Through the courtesy of the author, the third edition of J. H. Sanders' book on "Horse Breeding" has recently been placed on our shelves. The subject is an ever popular one, and the success of the former editions of Mr. Sanders' work proves his treatment of the subject to be also popular. The book is a highly comprehensive treatment of the history of the horse, the origins of the different breeds, as far as authentic data can be produced on the subject; the different results of his development in different countries and under different conditions, and the influence of heredity, dealing very fully in this connection with the diseases of the horse. In the description of breeds, Mr. Sanders states in the preface that he has endeavored to be judiciously candid and fair; to "nothing extenuate, nor set down aught in malice"; and where controverted points have been touched upon, he has tried to use arguments which to his mind are conclusive, while at the same time he has tried to do so in a manner that would not prove offensive to those whose opinions and conclusions may differ from his own. Eighteen years have passed since these remarks were written, and in these years many theories have been exploded, and many controverted points have been finally settled, while on the other hand many new theories have been advanced and points controverted. Ten years ago, the work was revised and the book placed on the market. The present issue is still farther revised, and brought up to date, and much new matter has been added.

To the casual student, the book will be found interesting; to every farmer and dealer in horseflesh it contains a mine of useful information, and to the horse-breeder the knowledge conveyed in it is indispensable.

The book is published by the J. H. Sanders Publishing Co., Chicago, and can be procured through the "Farmer's Advocate." Price, $1.50.

The summer number of the Live Stock Journal, which is published as usual during the week of the Royal Agricultural Society's Show, contains many interesting articles dealing with the origin and development of agricultural and horse shows, and the improvement of live stock generally. There are contributions by well-known authorities on "The Hunting Sires of the Past"; "Hackneys 100 years ago"; "Coach and Cart Horses in Early Times"; "Early Show Reminiscences and Jumping Prizes"; "Polo Pony Breeding"; "The Horse of the Future"; "First Lessons for Young Hunters"; "Shire Horse Breeding as a Farmers' Industry"; "The Oldest Industry"; "Young Blood"; "The Export Demand for Stud Sheep"; "Pig Breeding"; "Poultry Keeping in the Home Counties," etc. Three colored plates are presented with the number, and there are eighteen illustrations in black and white. The price is 4d., or post free 6d. The publishers are Messrs. Vinton & Co., Ltd., 9 New Bridge Street, London, E.C.
