We fellows had missed Dick's cheerful face a good deal from the Levity club of late, and the idea took posses sion of us that he must be ill or in love. As his especial friend I was commissioned to investigate. To this end I called upon him at his chambers in the Temple. I knocked, but received no reply, so I pushed open the door and entered. I expected to find the room empty: but, to my surprise, right before me as I entered sat Dick Graham at a writing table which was strewn with manuscripts and odd scraps of paper. "Dick, old chap," said I, stepping forward to his desk and laying my hand upon his shoulder, "what's up? Turned deaf all of a sudden?"

"Good heavens!" be cried. "I-Iyou gave me a fright, Harold. I didn't know any one was in the room." "I beg your pardon," I replied. "But knocked several times, and as I received no invitation to come in I en-ly, with a glance at his desk. "Yes, yes," I interrupted, "I see your confounded old yarns. Well, you've simply got to turn them up for spell. Now, come."

"I would," replied Dick, "were I engaged upon any ordinary story, but this one I am working at now is my masterpiece." "H'm!" I coughed slightly.

"Really," said Dick, "I'm in earnest this time. Look here, I've just conceiv ed the idea for a plot which when worked into a story will startle the world with its brilliancy. Just have a squint at the outline. Perhaps a suggestion might help me."

Eagerly he raked together about a dozen scraps of paper covered with diagrams and a sheet of paper closely written upon.

"My idea." he began, "is this: Two fellows, named respectively Dick and Harry, are in love with two girls, Lucy and Mabel. Now, Dick loves Lucy while Harry's affections are centered upon Mabel. Very well. But there is trouble-i. e., Mabel doesn't care a straw about Harry. Her fancy is Dick. And the object of Lucy's tender passion is Harry, D'you see?"

"Yes." rather faintly. "Well," he continued, "there is to be a masked ball in their town, and my four characters will be present. Dick intends to go as a Chinaman and Harry as Mr. Answers. Mabel is going as Queen Mary and Lucy as Mrs. Kruger, By some means they all get to know what the disguises of the others will be. But at the last moment each couple exchange their dresses, reversing the characters. D'you see?"

"I-I think I grasp it," I muttered between my set teeth. "Well," continued Dick, "the consequence is that Harry, who was going as Mr. Answers, but who has really gone as a Chinaman, proposes to Lucy, who is made up as Queen Mary, taking her to be Mabel, who as a matter of fact is masquerading as Mrs. Kruger." A cold sweat was beginning to break out all over me, and I believe I must have worn that same kind of hunted expression which was now increasing on poor Dick's fore. He had gathered two or three scraps of paper, and was illustrating the "idea" to me by means of rough sketches of the characters, from one to the other of whom he drew arrows to point his meaning. "Go on," I said desperately. "You see," he said, in compliance, "here is an arrow pointing from Dick to Lucy, showing he loves her; here is another from Lucy to Harry, showing she loves Harry." I fairly trembled now, and Graham's hair was assuming a rigid perpendicular. "Then here is a diagram, showing them at the ball, which points to the fact"-"Heavens, man!" I broke out, "drop it, or I'll go mad!" "Do have a little patience!" he cried

"Pardon me, Dick, old fellow." I in-terrupted. "It may be that I am very dense, but I must confess that I can't follow you.

"That's because you're a fool!" he snanned. "This is the grandest, most novel, simplest and at the same time most intricate plot ever hatched. "Weil, have another try to explain," said L.

Without delay I dashed off to the Levity and fetched half a dozen friends. We arrived at Dick's chambers.

The poor fellow was sitting quietly on the floor, surrounded by manu scripts and sheets of paper bearing dia-

Death and Snuff. A certain Margaret Wilson of Westninster, who was an inveterate snuff taker, enjoined that a quantity of Scotch snuff should be placed in her coffin. She also ordered that the arrangements connected with her funeral should be as follows: "Six men to be my bearers who are known to be the greatest snuff takers in the parish of St. James, Westminster. Instead of mourning, each to wear a snuff colored beaver hat, which I desire may be bought for the purpose and given to them. Six maidens of my old acquaintance to bear my pall, each to carry a box filled with the best Scotch snuff, to take for their refreshment as they go along." Snuff was also to be thrown on the threshold of deceased dwelling before the cortege passed out, snuff was to be strewn on the ground at every 20 yards in advance of the coffin, and the officiating clergyman's fee was to be proportion the quantity of snuff he consumed dur-ing the ceremony.—Household Words.

HIS CONSECUTIVE LETTERS.

"Now, Arthur," said Mrs. Barring ton, as her husband put three hand-bags in the seat beside her in the sleeper and handed over six baggage checks, 'I want you to be sure and write to me every day, and tell me everything you think, just how much you miss me, and all about the way the servants get along." "Oh, I'll keep you posted," he re-lied. "You go ahead and have a good time and don't worry about me. I'll get along some way. Of course it'll be lonely and all that, but I'll manage to pass the time. It'll be ather dis-mal for me to sit on the front porch alone when it begins to get dark, thinking of you in the gay crowd baving a good time, and never giving a thought to---

"Arthur Barrington," his pretty wife Interrupted, "if you continue to that way I just sha'n't go. You know I shall think of you every minute I'm away, and if the doctor hadn't said the sea air would be good for me I wouldn't have thought of accepting Aunt Laura's invitation, Please don't fret me, love, will you? Remember that, wherever I may be, and no matter how gay my surroundings, I shall be thinking of you and" (lowering her voice to a whisper) "my soul will still be communing with your soul."

They threw kisses at each other as the train moved away. Then Barring-'on went to his office and began writing letters. They were to his wife. He wrote fourteen of them—enough to last two weeks. In general outline the letters were about the same. He started each by filling a sheet with endearing words and declarations that he was very lonely without his darling. Then followed the local color she wanted in the form of comments on occurrences of the day in and around their home The letters were not dated, but he scaled and addrssed them, and arranged them in a bunch, so that his stenographer could take off the top one day after day and drop it into the mail box. She had been gone nearly a weel when there came a telegram for him. Of course telegrams had to be opened and, when Miss Wildreth, the sten ographer, read the message she turned

"Why don't you answer my questions about the housemaid's ankle and your liver? Am awfully worried." That was what Elizabeth Barrington had telegraphed. After studying the matter for a while Miss Wildreth deeided that it was necessary for her to act. She was clever enough to hold a position that not more than one man out of fifty could have filled, and she had the habit of keeping her eyes and ears open. Still, she said to herself:
"The housemaid's ankle? I can see how he might know something about his own liver, but—and why should his wife, of all people, want him to see about it? Well, if I ever get mar-But instead of finishing what had started to say she wrote the folthing tells me you are worse. Wire immediately." The stenographer replied: "Never mind reference to steel. Am all right." Mrs. Barrington watched eagerly for the postman on the following day, and when he handed her Arthur's letter she opened it with trembling fingers. Eagerly she scanned the first page and was about half through the local color when she jumped up and ran o her aunt, crying:

"Merciful goodness, what can this hean? Three days ago Arthur wrote that the housemaid was 'still laid up cherry tree, spraining her ankle, and that he made himself a Welsh rarebit night before last and ate so much of It that his liver is all upset. Why on earth did the housemaid climb a cherry tree when she had a lame ankle, and what ever possessed Arthur to eat a Welsh rarebit when the doctor had just warned him about his liver?" Her aunt was trying to figure it out, when Elizabeth Barrington happened to think of the telegram she had reseived the day before. "This letter must have been written about the time they were sent," she and. "I'm going home. Something's wrong. Arthur's liver trouble has gone to his head. My poor darling has lost his reason. He writes a thing and then denies it by telegraph. By starting to-night I can be with him o-morrow afternoon. Oh, how shall pass the weary hours!" Miss Wildreth broke down and made full confession when Mrs. Barring-on rushed, wild-eyed and pale, into her husband's office. Then the two roung women sat together in the priate room and wept.

"If I hadn't accidently knocked or
