THEY TALKED OF EMPIRE

"American Day" Emphasized by Canadian-British Banquet.

Fair Directors Honor Canadian-Bred British M. P. P. Hamar Greenwood, and Incidentally Winston Churchill's Message to the People of Canada That Change of Government Has Not Weakened Tie That Binds.

Toronto, Sept. 7.—It was eminently fitting that "American Day" at Canadian National Exhibition should be chosen by the directors to banquet Hamar Greenwood, M. P. for York, England, but, as Sir William Mulock put it, "Canadian bred."

Though it was a great function, it was held in the evening and was over by 10 o'clock last night.

W. K. McNaught, M. P. P., made a perfect chairman, and in introducing the guest of the occasion said that Mr. Greenwood had been of very great assistance to the directors of the fair in many matters of importance in England during the year, and this in itself made it appropriate to entertain him at the fair. But they were proud to welcome him for what he was and what he had done for Canada and the Empire.

The toast of "The King," was duly honored and the National Anthem sung.

Growth of Empire.

Hon. J. W. St. John, in proposing the toast of "The Empire," stated that it had increased during last century at the rate of two acres a second. He was glad to say that in this mighty Empire the champion of liberty and civilization, the sons and daughters of Canada took foremost place. In statesmanship this was evident from the list of Canadians in the Imperial Parliament, of whom he mentioned Hon. Edward Blake, Sir Gilbert Parker, Benar Law, Charles D. Evelyn, Dr. Macnamara, C. D. Rose, Allen Baker, Foster Boulton and last, but not least, Hamar Greenwood.

Sir William Mulock, in responding, complimented the gifted first commoner of Ontario, who proposed the toast. Were he to treat the subject in the light of the storied past he would venture the assertion that the Empire owed its position among the present day nations to the fact that British institutions stood for liberty and justice.

What were to be the future relations of Canada with the Empire, was a question often asked. He did not share the view that a new bond was needed. In his judgment the imperial sentiment was not a sordid one, and did not depend on tariffs, custom walls, preferences or free trade, but on a higher, holier foundation. Britain was the cradle of civil and religious liberty, and this was the great heritage Canada enjoyed, from the mother of nations. Sentiment was the true bond, and mercenary considerations would have no place in determining the union, which would continue from age to age.

He had to congratulate Britain on the importation of Hamar Greenwood, Canadian-bred. His success would stimulate many young Canadians to dedicate as he had done his great gifts to the mother country.

Mayor Coatsworth was pleased to note that those conditions which had brought about the disintegration of earlier empires were wanting in the British. He joined in congratulating Britain in acquiring some young Canadian blood such as had been supplied by Mr. Greenwood.

The Toast of the Evening.

A. H. N. Colquhoun proposed the toast of the evening. Mr. Greenwood was one of that republic of letters in which those who belonged to it were careful of their common interests. Mr. Greenwood had distinguished himself in many ways, but it was to his own talent and pluck that Mr. Greenwood owed his present position. He represented in the British Parliament a party which was peculiarly close to the democratic forces of the time. They recognized the British Empire as a power for good, and they saw in him one with whom they had common ground in the service of the Empire. His own idea of imperialism was of the quality of the King's subject in every part of the Empire, and Mr. Greenwood's success had done much to establish that.

Mr. Greenwood's Reply.

After graceful personal references to those who honored him and thanks for that honor, Mr. Greenwood said he considered Canada to be the most progressive and most important colony of the Empire. The people had a sense of political and religious equality which was still wanting in Britain. The more Canadians there were in the House of Commons the more would imperial matters be considered and the more would the proper quarters for settlement. They had now nine thorough-bred Canadians and one or two New Zealanders and Australians in the House. This would prevent the Home Government landing in a morass, as they have done on some occasions, and would prevent the signing of an Ashburton or any subsequent treaty of that kind.

Keen For the Colonies.

He was sure the present English administration, with all of whom he had discussed Canada, were as keen for the colonies as he was. But he was not sure that the present Government was as keen for the colonies as he was. He would not for a moment attempt to interfere in Canadian affairs. He was in the small but considerable majority of those who never gave advice to his native country. But when a British Cabinet took office they were always actuated with respect, sympathy and loyalty towards the colonies. There was no such thing as partisanship in a British Cabinet. Whether a squatter in Australia or a 160-acre man in the Northwest, it was the sentiment of the great men in England that the Empire stood behind their distant brethren. Their great hearts beat in England as warmly for Canada as Canadians' own.

A Hard Country to Forget.

He hoped that from generation to generation they would find England an increasingly hard country to forget. He believed they were growing closer and closer on account of causes of the heart, over which no party politics clans, he thanked God, had any control. At this point he read a letter to himself from Winston Churchill, M. P. In which the Colonial Under Secretary said that the change of Government, "great and far-reaching though it has been, does not imply any weakening in the affection of the British people towards their kith and kin across the sea," and he commissioned Mr. Greenwood to convince the people of Canada of that fact.

Concluding Mr. Greenwood said: "During a life which I hope will be long, and which I know will be difficult, I hope that I will never do anything that will bring shame to any Canadian, or ever speak a word that would reflect other than credit to the land of my birth and to which I hold a higher position it would be to make it possible for him more worthy to represent Canada and more usefully to serve the great Empire."

Chairman McNaught thought Winston Churchill's letter would give a great feeling of relief to many who feared the result of the accession to power of the Liberal party in England.

American Day.

Yesterday the Stars and Stripes floated over the Administration Building at the Fair. At the directors' luncheon toasts were drunk after the royal health had been honored, to the President of the United States and to W. K. McNaught, M. P. P., "the honorary but active president of the association," whose 62nd birthday it was.

Chairman W. K. McNaught spoke of the good terms existing between the two great American nations.

Prof. Carlyle and A. R. Minard, secretary of the Boston Canadian Club, spoke up for the president and the United States.

Prof. Carlyle.

Hon. A. B. Morine of Newfoundland and G. C. Creelman also contributed to the speech making.

SUFFERING WOMEN

Need Just the Rich Red Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make.

From girlhood to middle life the health and happiness of every woman depends upon her blood. If her blood is poor and watery she becomes weak, languid, pale and nervous. If her blood supply is irregular she suffers from headaches and backaches, and other unspeakable distresses which only women know. At every stage of woman's life Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, because they actually make the rich, red blood which gives help and strength and tone to every organ of the body. They help a woman just when nature makes the greatest demand upon her blood supply. Mrs. H. Gagnon, who for twenty years has been one of the best known residents of St. Roch, Que., says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been a blessing to me. I was weak, worn out and scarcely able to drag myself about. I suffered from headache and dizziness, my appetite was poor, and to a tempt housework left me utterly worn out. I slept badly at night, and what sleep I got did not refresh me. For nearly three years I was in this condition, and was constantly taking medicine, but found no benefit from it. One of my neighbors, who had used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with much benefit, advised me to try them. I did so, and the whole story is told in the words 'I am well again.' There are times yet when I take the pills for they seem to me a guarantee against the troubles from which so many women suffer."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills don't act on the bowels. They contain just the elements that actually make new blood and strengthen the vessels. That's why they cure anaemia, indigestion, neuralgia, rheumatism, lambs, headaches, backaches and heart palpitation, and skin diseases like pimples and eczema. That is why they are the greatest help in the world for growing girls who need new blood and for women who are troubled with irregular health. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., at 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50.

Lady's Remarkable Swim.

A long-distance swim by members of the Kingston Ladies' Swimming Club has resulted in some extraordinary performances, and especially that of Miss Ethel Littlewood. The lady, who is a hospital nurse and 23 years of age, started from Sunbury Lock at 9 a. m. and did not leave the water until she reached the Isleworth gate of Kew Gardens at 3 p. m. She was in the water for eleven hours, and swam a distance of about 16 miles. Three other ladies, Miss D. Machin, Miss Lowe and Miss C. Machin, remained in the water about nine hours.

Result of Intense Emotion.

A young cat was seen to catch his first mouse. As he was carrying it in triumph to the house he suddenly became paralyzed in the hind quarters, and for an hour remained stretched on the ground. Then movement returned, but it was observed from the way he knocked himself against the furniture and made no effort to take food which was given to him that he was blind.

For two hours he remained in this condition. Finally the blindness suddenly vanished and pussy was himself again. He was a case of hysterical paralysis, brought on by the intense emotion of his first mouse.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

New Touring Coat For Young Girls. Oriental Head Coverings.

For girls of fifteen or sixteen there is a mannish looking touring coat that is out of the ordinary. It is developed from a large plaid, cut on box lines, but with seams from the shoulders back and front. These are covered from the shoulder seams to the line of the hips back and front with a broad strap, cut on the bias, piped, and the ends held down to the coat with large pearl buttons. The sleeves are full length, full at the top and are trimmed their entire length with the bias band, its end overlying a small cuff at the wrist. The closing is double breasted, and the man's collar shows an inlay of black velvet. The closing is under a fly, and two large patch pockets on the fronts complete the coat.

CHAMPAGNE COLORED COSTUME.

ings are fascinating. Plain girls become pretty and pretty girls dream of loveliness when arrayed in these dainty bits of lace and gauze. One of the prettiest styles comes from far-off Algeria and can be had in either black or white, richly wrought in gold or silver thread in old eastern designs. There is a knack about arranging these head coverings, but individual ingenuity, if one has a speck of artistic feeling, will work out the problem to the satisfaction of the wearer.

The costume sketched is a Parisian confection evolved in champagne peau de cygne. The skirt is box plaited from the knees and inserted with narrow lace panels over pale pink silk.

The bodice is composed of the champagne silk helped out with pink satin and flit lace. The small string tie is of black satin. JUDIC CHOLLET.

VAGARIES OF THE MOMENT.

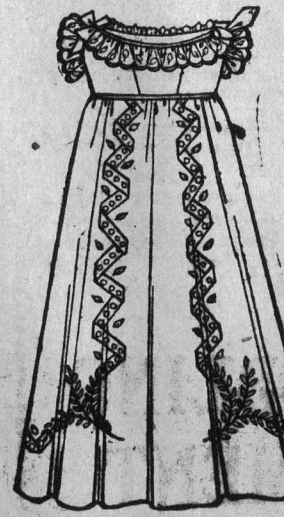

All Fashionable Materials Are Soft. A Pretty Summer Gown.

All materials this summer are soft. Nothing heavier than marquisette, a sort of supple etamine, is permissible. Chiffon affords the handsomest afternoon gowns, making noticeable inroads on the ever popular foulards.

The latter in radium variety is very smart.

When a slip is used china silk is more satisfactory in the long run than taffeta, but there should be even more care expended in the making. Princess slips are the natural outcome of the popularity of the princess gown.

A pretty checked taffeta slip gown is made in the following style: The skirt is plaited flat below the hips, forming a fitted yoke. The plaits below this point are pressed and fall in soft folds. The bodice is surplised with three-quarter sleeves and a high girde. The chemise is of Irish lace.

Sheer stuffs are used for the majority of shirt waists, even those severe in style.

Everything about a white costume must be in keeping down to the tiniest accessories.

The infant's dress seen in the cut is a French affair of the sheerest main-silk, trimmed with real valenciennes lace and exquisite hand embroidery.

The short waisted bodice has a tucked vest and side forms tucked on the bias in a very original fashion.

NO. 10. MASTER MINDS ON MUSIC

Being the 10th of a series of ten talks introducing sayings of great men, applicable to the Nordheimer Piano, the symbol to perfect music.

The man that has no music in himself, Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds, Is fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils.—Shakespeare

In this last of our series of what the master writers have said about music we have quoted the familiar words of the greatest English poet. Many times Shakespeare has credited music with being the greatest of arts, and in his day music had not reached the summit of its magnificence that it has today with such instruments as

THE NORDHEIMER PIANO

The "concord of sweet sounds" is but another name for the NORDHEIMER TONE, only the concord is ismore perfect than can be realized in any other instrument, for the Nordheimer is now accepted by the Canadian people almost as a whole as the leader. Certainly it is the favorite among the most refined music lovers. If you are a music lover we would like to have you visit our ware-room and see the magnificent display.
