The board declines to pay Friday. on the ground that the district attorney had no authority to pursue a criminal outside the borders of the country, and deceased :that if he did so he must pay the costs himself. Mr. Gardner, on the other hand, claims that it was his duty to prosecute all criminals for offences committed in the country, and if necessary to secure their extradition. The case was argued at length in the supreme court before Judge Maynham, but no decision reached.
