A WEAK FOUNDATION.

The opposition to the local government is badly off for sources of inspiration when its chief organ, the Sun, depends upon the fiction ground out by the nearly defunct and totally discredited Gleaner. The other day the Sun's intelligent correspondent rebuffed from the Gleaner and forwarded to St. John the sensational story that the attorney general had fled to Boston and would not dare return until after the Quebec investigation was concluded. The correspondent had the gall to send this word some hours after Mr. Blair had actually returned home. The next exploit of the correspondent was to announce in last Saturday's Sun that the government was greatly perplexed over its financial difficulties and that the executive session was prolonged beyond the usual length by his troubles. It turned out that it was some business connected with the Sun company itself that had lengthened out the sitting of council as appears by the following extract from Monday's Telegraph:

The business which took the most time was hearing and trying to dispose of the application of the old Sun company to get incorporated as a new company. The old government having become disreputable it was deemed prudent to put it aside and array itself in a brand new rig which would be free from the taint and stains of the old suits and caped bills which cling to it, and hence Messrs. Thorne, McLeod, Barker and others have blossomed out as applicants for a new charter from the government. Judge Steadman who received a verdict of over $2,000 against the Sun in his libel suit, seeing the notice of application at once filed a strong protest with the government against the granting of the new charter charging the directors of the Sun company with fraudulently seeking to defeat him in the recovery of his verdict. The acknowledgment of a judgment to Major Markham was part of the scheme and the granting of a new incorporation would be the consummation of it. Instead of the session being prolonged into Saturday, as the Sun says, by the government's financial difficulties, Saturday morning a sub-committee of the council was actually hearing Dr. Taylor, president of the Sun and Wesley VanWart representing Judge Steadman and discussing the Sun people's petition.

Again there was trouble in the government camp. Dr. Taylor, M. P. P. for Kings, had resigned, so the public was assured, and was to get the resignation of Kings county. It appears as a matter of fact that Dr. Taylor had not done anything of the kind, nor has there been any reason suggested why Dr. Taylor should resign. He is still in Europe with his bride and it is doubtful if even to oblige his very dear friends, Hanington and Stockton, he will consent to do so. We also heard not long since that Mr. Ketchum, M. P. P., was about throwing up his seat for Carleton, having personally, as we were assured during the Kent election gone into opposition. This resignation has not materialized and Mr. Ketchum has not yet become aware that he is in opposition. We presume the leaders of the opposition will notify him that he has gone over in good season.

Speaking of resignations reminds us of our friend Phinney. There are those who affirm very strongly that he will not again take his seat in the house. This is not improbable in our opinion but it would be incorrect to attribute his action, should he resign altogether, to the result of the recent elections in Kent. It was, no doubt, a most humiliating defeat for Phinney, and having staked his credit, politically, on the result, it is not surprising that he should retire, but he is only under a moral obligation to do so. There is no compulsion in a legal sense, and although our friend frankly acknowledges himself to be the son of honor and righteous beyond his fellows, he may probably see his way clear to defer action for the present.

THAT ALLEGED $5,000.

That man must be utterly devoid of human feeling who would deny the Sun his sympathy in its present painful situation. We do not mean in this reference to allude even remotely to the recent financial trouble through which our contemporary has passed, such for instance as the sale of its establishment by the sheriff, nor do we hint at the fact that being in receipt of $55 per day from the dominion government for alleged interfering with the colonial and other printing, it is quite able to speak with an unbiased judgment upon current political events. These several matters are no doubt fruitful of discussion and the Sun, which testifies to the deep anxiety and concern under which our esteemed contemporary is laboring in this connection. Having some curiosity ourselves and possessed of a yearning and sympathetic feeling towards an editorial brother in distress, we have concluded to come to his assistance in our humble way. But we must be allowed to conduct the investigation in our own way. We shall first elucidate the problem in political ethics whether assuming that Mr. Weldon, Mr. Ellis or Mr. Blair were offered a subscription to the election fund by parties in Quebec, it was their duty to have entered upon a careful inquiry whether the subscription was being given out of stolen money and whether in principle there is any marked distinction between the methods which Facad appears very improperly to have adopted and raiding the public treasury through bogus accounts for public printing which was never done. After we have settled these and cognate questions to our own satisfaction we shall go further. We shall not advise Mr. Weldon, Mr. Ellis or Mr. Blair to stand up, and like good boys at school, answer the Sun's catechism. The Sun would be greatly amused and probably flattered if it could summon its numerous objects of attack to their feet on call, and if these gentlemen being advised by us to answer did respond, the Sun would mildly insinuate that they were a trio of very unscrupulous persons. We shall therefore take another line and if after we shall frankly acknowledge that the Sun has thereby shown abundant reason why the territory government should not be distributed.

Mr. Blair will be glad to hear that he has so snug an estate as the above in B. C. and no doubt, will at once look it up. If he should find the Gleaner's information correct, it is to be hoped his investment will prove more productive than that made by his last partner.

MR. GREGORY'S $8,025.

The following paragraph appeared in the Gleaner of the 18th inst.:

A. G. Blair would appear to have considerable confidence in the future of the North West. The records of Victoria, British Columbia, show that he has invested of his surplus cash about $10,000 in real estate in that place.

On the other hand, the records of York county show that George F. Gregory has invested his surplus cash of $8,025 in the city of Fredericton, dangerously near the Gleaner office.

Mr. Blair will be glad to hear that he has so snug an estate as the above in B. C. and no doubt, will at once look it up. If he should find the Gleaner's information correct, it is to be hoped his investment will prove more productive than that made by his last partner.

THE BOSTON BANQUET.

The leader of the liberal party was banqueted at Boston on the 17th inst. by his compatriots resident in the New England states, and made a speech, as was to be expected, on the occasion. Assuming that it was not imprudent on Mr. Laurier's part to accept the invitation tendered him, he appears to have acquitted himself creditably and to have furnished very little, if any, material in which to aid for hostile party criticism. His references to independence as the ultimate destiny of Canada were not only patriotic but statesmanlike. In what he said on this topic he was only expressing his own opinion and in that opinion every thoughtful person will coincide who does not look for a political union with the republic. The present connection with the Empire may endure for a long period, and Mr. Laurier, it is clear, has no wish to hasten the date of its termination. In projecting his eyes into futurity he cannot shut his eyes to the conviction that a condition of colonial dependence will not always satisfy the aspirations of an ambitious and self-reliant people.

That portion of his speech in which he assumed to speak as leader of the great liberal party of Canada is of more interest because it touches subjects, or as we ought rather to say, a subject within the sphere of practical politics. The occasion did not call for any precise or elaborate definition of liberal policy, and, therefore, Mr. Laurier contented himself with saying that one half the people are in favor of Canada regulating its tariff laws so as to serve the interests of Canada, and that the liberal party is in favor of more extended trade relations with the people of the United States. "This policy," he said, "has been made an issue in his country by that party. We are prepared to approach our American neighbors, with a fair offer, of reciprocity extending over all the old lines for our products and their products as soon as a liberal administration has been placed in power at Ottawa." Nothing could be more satisfactory than this declaration of Mr. Laurier that portion of the people who make very nearly one-half its voting strength, and when the electorate has another opportunity to express its judgment on this policy, freed from the annexation clamor which was falsely raised in February last, there is little doubt as to what that judgment will be.

The tariff policy of the liberal party cannot to our mind be better defined than to describe it as the direct opposite of that of Tories. The latter is in favor of high taxation as a means of increasing the wealth and promoting the prosperity of the country. The liberals believe that no more taxes should be extracted from the earnings and savings of the people than is necessary for the legitimate purposes of honest government. The taxes levied by retarding upon your neighbor who may not appear anxious to trade with you, and by restricting your intercourse with him you are conferring a benefit upon your own people. Liberals on the other hand adhere to the old fashioned idea that international trade means international exchange of commodities, and the more merchandise you have been able to import, the more you must have been able to sell. That all trade is free, and that there are no unnecessary restrictions imposed upon the pretense of stimulating home production, are especially so. The Tories profess to believe, and certainly act upon the belief, that no trade should be permitted between us and the United States or interchange allowed unless they are specifically confined to those articles which are the natural products of each country. The liberal policy is against such restrictions. They say reciprocity is essential to the full development of the resources of both countries; we cannot take down all the barriers between us and our neighbors since we must have a revenue; but we are willing to agree, so far as is honorable or practicable, to a broad reciprocity not confined to natural products since the United States government will not agree to such, but a treaty including all descriptions of merchandise subject only to the qualification that it need be no larger or more extended than the Americans are willing to give us on the one hand, and as broad as we can afford to take conformably with the revenue needs of our country on the other.

WILL THERE BE A GENERAL ELECTION?

We cannot think the rumors of another general election for the dominion, which are again current, have the slightest foundation. Not only are we unable to discern any reason which would be likely to influence the government to try another early appeal to the country, but there are the strongest possible reasons against such a course. It is no doubt true that Mr. Abbott finds reconstructing an exceedingly difficult work, but a general election would not make the task any easier. He could not face the country without making as strong a formation as the material at hand will permit, and if he can reconstruct so as to face the country, he can much more easily reconstruct to face parliament. Moreover, it is doubtful if the governor general, who may be expected to retain some lingering respect for constitutional usage, would grant a second dissolution so soon after the first to the same party, and a third, and to our mind absolutely conclusive reason is, that there must be a redistribution of seats, consequent on the census returns, and a redistribution measure must pass before another appeal to the country could be taken by the conservative party. We think our readers may dismiss the idea as a mere idle dream. Elections are not a luxury, which governments needlessly indulge in, nor have we any ground for supposing another general election would be called on, unless the party in power supposed there would be an advantage in it. No sane man can suggest one benefit likely to accrue to the conservative party from an appeal now. They had a hard enough time getting their present majority, and would care to hazard that majority, small as it is, if they can retain the seats they held, through the bye elections, they will do well, and as we gauge the situation, it will be easier for them to carry twenty seats at bye elections than one hundred and twenty in a new general election.

A Cheese Factory Contemplated - Pie Social - Visitors.

A big rain storm and a general freeze up seem to be the weather realities this week. The agricultural society held their annual meeting on Monday night, doing some general business and electing officers for the ensuing year. The old officers were all re-elected, R. Little, president; J. Mowat, secretary treasurer and E. Thompson depository. There seems to be a strong inclination on the part of the members to have a cheese factory established here and a meeting for the full discussion of the subject has been called for next week, date to be named by the secretary.

PIE SOCIAL - VISITORS.

A pie social was held in the church last night. A good musical program was arranged and well carried out and a very enjoyable night was spent. The object was to get a set of double windows for the manse.

MILLVILLE.

Its Lumbering and Farming Facilities - Manufacturing Sites.

This thriving village is situated on the Gibson-Woodstock branch of the C. P. R., about 37 miles from Fredericton. Its principal industry is that of lumbering, large quantities of timber are shipped every season. It is now the only great centre for hemlock bark in York county, there being between two and three thousand cords handled yearly. Cedar for railway ties and shingles, spruce and hemlock logs are carried by rail to the river, the Nackawic flowing almost through the centre of the settlement. The principal shipper is E. H. Estey, who runs a well stocked store and keeps a general line of goods well suited to the trade and sold at reasonable rates. There are two mills, neither of which are running at present. The Ryan mill contains a rotary, single and lath machine, is a water power mill, and when cutting, does a good amount of work. The Hayes mill is a small one run by steam for sawing shingles. It has a 35 H. P. engine and a Conell machine, all in good condition. The building is in good repair, and all is ready for work. The owner, William Hayes, wants to sell at a bargain, as he is getting old and his farm work takes all his time. This would be a good opening for a grist mill or carding mill, or both in connection. Terms will be made easy.

S. A. JONES AND S. H. CLARK KEEP GENERAL STORES.

S. A. Jones and S. H. Clark keep general stores, well stocked with goods, affording an opportunity of purchasing at small advance on cost.

THE PRINCIPAL HOTEL IS KEPT BY HENRY BROWN.

Henry Brown, and is favorably known to travellers as the Millville House. It is a very neat, commodious building and is run in first-class style.

THE STATION MASTER IS THOMAS L. EARLE.

Thomas L. Earle, station master, is well known to all patrons of the railway as an honest, obliging official, who is also attentive to the interests of the company and also attentive to those who have business with the railway. He also takes an active part in village affairs and is deservedly popular.

Within a circuit of two miles there are four school houses with all necessary appliances and healthy, happy children.

THE FARMERS ARE ALL STRONG, ACTIVE MEN.

The farmers are all strong, active men and have done much work to reclaim their farms from the wilderness, but there are not the signs of prosperity that their labor deserves, and in the settlement there are deserted farms that should be the homes of smiling contented people. Free trade is looked for by most of the people as the only thing that will hold the young people at home and prevent that desertion of the settlement that must take place should the present poor times continue. There is no use for the young men that there should be, and one by one they drift away till the country, as well as the farms, feels the drain, and the census, had it as it was, will be still worse when the time should the present depression continue.

IT APPEARS STRANGE TO A VISITOR THAT MILLVILLE, ONE OF THE MOST STIRRING SETTLEMENTS OF THE COUNTY, IS WITHOUT A DAILY MAIL.

It appears strange to a visitor that Millville, one of the most stirring settlements of the county, is without a daily mail, although the railway runs through it and there is an express train to and from Fredericton each day. There is no reason why there should not be a daily mail; instead of that the mail gets here usually twice a week, should weather and roads prove favorable. But it is not to be depended on and the merchants and other dealers are often compelled to wait weeks for goods that they might otherwise have had next day. Petitions have been sent to Ottawa and deputy inspector Whittaker planned the distribution of the mail, just before the last election, yet the farm horse man the mail twice a week, and the iron horse once by day.

MILLVILLE IS A FAIR SAMPLE OF WHAT PUSH AND INDUSTRY CAN DO IN NEW BRUNSWICK.

Millville is a fair sample of what push and industry can do in New Brunswick. Of course lumbering has been the great support of the village and this is dying out in some degree, but other industries are springing up to occupy the vacant places and the future is bright. One thing that is peculiarly noticeable is the neatness shown in all the buildings, there has been plenty of paint used and time given to the beautiful as well as the simply useful.

QUEENSBURY.

Two-Boating Closed - Cheese Factories - Fall Ploughing - Gaze to the Woods.

On Saturday last those veteran boatmen, Alexander Munroe of Nackawic and Gibson of Brighton, made one of the trips, likely the last of the season as at this late date snow and ice are likely to impede navigation. Henry Day who is master of the only other boat propelled by horse power did not come down as expected, he having been so unfortunate as to get his boat and cargo frozen up last fall.

The young men are now turning out in this neighborhood, going to the land of pork and beans. Others are to take lessons in French up in Quebec. Young ladies are now extremely kind and hospitable, that is right girls, send them off with pleasant memories, they are more likely to return in the spring and a knowledge of French is desirable and gives one tone.

Since Professor Robertson has commenced his course of lectures on dairy farming, we hear much talk among the farmers of this section about cheese factories. All that is required is a live man to work the matter up, the facilities are all that one needs as there are 400 cows in a distance of 8 miles, free site for factory buildings and plenty of the best spring water centrally located.

Farmers are now industriously pushing their farm work while the present soft weather lasts. The quantity of land ploughed is small compared with other years. The young men are now turning out in this neighborhood, going to the land of pork and beans. Others are to take lessons in French up in Quebec. Young ladies are now extremely kind and hospitable, that is right girls, send them off with pleasant memories, they are more likely to return in the spring and a knowledge of French is desirable and gives one tone.

Judge Niles of the federal court sentenced J. F. Chesney, a lawyer of prominence, to six years at Detroit for swindling negro women out of pension money. He collected from the government over $50,000, but only paid his clients a little over $2,000. When the sentence was pronounced Chesney broke down and cried like a baby, begging the court for mercy.

The danger of a water famine in New York, according to the statements of officers of the public works departments, is almost as great as ever, notwithstanding Tuesday's rain storm. The rain which fell in the Croton watershed was not sufficient to materially increase the volume of water in the Croton river or other streams that supply the reservoirs.

No More Fancy Prices.

I have just received 500 pairs of Spectacles and Eyeglasses, which I will sell from 25 to 75 cts. per pair and guarantee a perfect fit in every case. These are not cheap, shoddy goods, such as are sold by peddlers, but a good reliable article.
