Leo. xiii. Performs the Jubiles

oce of the Catholic Stands: and Times.

Rome, July 8. The ceremony which took place yesterday in St. Peter's was less memorable than unique, and yet one of the most memorable ceremonies of the holy year. No man had ever seen such a ceremony before; no man either now surviving or once living, for though some may still be living who have seen Leo XII. perform the Jubilee in 1825, no one ever saw a Pope perform the exercises of a jubilee in a private way within the walls and shut doors of a basilies, compelled to act as if clan-destinely but with a singular display of Papal pomp.

It was the first jubiles visit of His Holiness. With him went the members of his "noble," or personal, court the members of the Papal ad-ministration and other persons baving residence in the Vation-in a word, all the Vatican, men, wemen and children. The Noble Guard, commanded by Count Soderini, formed the Papal escort; the Swies Guard preceded and followed the escort. And from outside the Vatcan, for the greater part, came the many Cardinals, who, in their scatlet cobes, formed a brilliant crown of color around the white figure of the Pontis — Cardinals Casali del Drago, Cassette, Cictoni, Di Pietro, Feratta, Gotti, Macchi, Mocenni, Pierotti, Respighi, Segns, Steinhuber, S. ra-fino Varnatelli and Vives y Tuto. It was an act of prayer performed

He there knelt at a faldstool before the altar. Mgr. Cavicobioni, Archbishop of Nasianzse, intoned the "O Sacrum Convivium," which was taken up by those present, and recited the five Paters, Aves and Glorias, all answering. The Pope then proceeded to the altar of the tomb of St. Peter, the Litany of the Saints being sung by the chaplain went. The singing of these proceeded while he knelt in yraye above the resting place of the first Pope, and while he piously observed the great relies of the spear-head the Veronica veil and the true cros exposed from the loggia by Mgr. Ceppetelli, Archbiehop of Myra and iceregent of Rome.

The Litany over, Mgr. Cavio hioni recited a prayer to the Apos tle, Saints Peter and Paul, with the antiphon "Gloriosi Principes" and followed by the cellect "Oremus, Deus qui hodiernam"—the Pope was erforming his first jubilee visit on the Monday within the octave of the Apostles. At the altar of Sain Processus and Martinianus, that of te left transept, where the Vatican Council was held, other beautiful prayers were recited. The Canticle of Zachary was sung as the Pope went in procession to the altar. When he knelt before it, a prayer to lesus, the Redeemer of the world was recited, three Patere, Aves an
