Uncle Walt

THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

He's savage as a jub-jub bird that flops around with broken wing: he never says a friendly word, you never see him dance and sing. He has a dark, forbidding scowl, he has a flerce, aggressive jaw; and J. PIERPONT when he speaks it's in a growl that jars you like a crosscut saw. He looks around upon mankind as though he'd like to slay the race; the thoughts that fester in his mind reflected are upon his face. If money makes a man like that, and makes him hate to sing and dance. I'm glad I'm wearing last year's hat, and have large patches on my pants. If money freezes up the soul, and makes one hate his fellow man, the rich man's welcome to his roll-I would not be money fan. When I go humping down the street to buy a volume of "Old Sleuth," the greetings of the friends I meet warm up my heart, restore my youth. I would not give their friendly smiles, the shaking of their kindly hands, for all J. Pierpont's golden piles, and all his railways,

Streets Were Lively.

It is a remarkable fact that of late omparatively few drunks are arrested Saturdays, but that on Mondays the reverse occurs and the police are kept more or less busy. Yesterday afforded an instance of this, and during the afternoon and evening 8 drunks and disorderlies were jailed. The police in the central and western parts of the city were exceptionally busy. Consts. Stanford, Bennett and Nugent made arrests, and the latter had quite a time of it with a prisoner whom he had to manacle and bundle into a cab before he could get him to the station.
