

the Saar, but they must leave him now for the attack was to be in an hour. Hermann was pale as he grasped the hands of his friends to wish them good-bye.

After some cheering words from Edwin and Hilde, Hermann waved his hand, placed himself at the head of his company, and sternly set his face to duty.

The Credit System.

The attention of the business community has recently been called to the present iniquitous system of credit, and the hollow and unsatisfactory results growing out of it. Credit to a limited extent is undoubtedly an absolute necessity, but the extensive manner in which it is now employed is harmful to a degree.

The long credits, which were abolished by the war, are slowly creeping back to us, and if competition is as strong during the next few years it has been in the past, credits of one or two years may again become common. It may be said that such an extensive credit system is of great convenience to business men of small capital; but if the matter is considered in the right light it will be found that the evils resulting from it will more than counterbalance any advantage it may possess.

Less goods on shorter time would have answered many of them, but the mere ability to obtain long credit makes them load up and go into debt as if a day of settlement would never come.

Decidedly the best remedy that has been discovered for rheumatism, swollen or stiff joints, flesh wounds, sprains, bruises, cuts, and burns, is Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. We use it, and always recommend it to our friends.
