

TANGLED THREADS

To this Arthur Bohun answered candidly enough. He did like Ellen Adair; if circumstances permitted he should only be too glad to make her his wife; but, as Mrs. Cumberland knew, he had hitherto been very poor. As he pleased, Mrs. Cumberland remarked: the matter was entirely for his own consideration; she did not attempt to press it, one way or the other; if he saw no chance of his circumstances improving, he should freely say so, and terminate his visits; and should not allow Ellen to be played with. And upon that, Arthur begged to have the night for reflection; he would see Mrs. Cumberland in the morning, and give her his decision.

So it was left. When Ellen returned to the room—unconscious of what had been said during her brief absence from it—Captain Bohun took his departure. Arrived at the hotel where he had put up, he devoted himself to the consideration of the grave question, weighing it in all its bearings as fairly as his love for Ellen allowed him to do. Of course that biased him.

He had sufficient to marry upon now. By the death of the relative for whom he was mourning, he had, on his own income, eight hundred a-year. With his own income, that made twelve. Quite sufficient to begin upon, though he was a Bohun. But—there were deterring considerations. In some way, he suspected, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Adair, had contrived to instill a suspicion in the mind of Sir Nash, that Arthur, unless he were closely controlled, might be making a mess of his life. He could help himself, but he could not help Sir Nash. He spoke to Arthur, telling him that unless he married with the full approval of his family, he should never succeed in the world. No, nor to the title if he could help it. If James died, he, Sir Nash, would marry first, and leave direct heirs.

This, it was, that now interfered with Arthur's decision. One fact was known to him—that James Bohun, since this illness set in, had joined his father in cutting off the entail, so that the thread of leaving the estates away from Arthur (even though he succeeded to the title) could be easily accomplished. What was to be done? Part with Sir Nash? He could not. On, it might only make her his wife without the world knowing it; the world abroad, and the world at home! Might this be a very nice way? Arthur Bohun arrived at a conclusion—that the only plan, if Mrs. Cumberland and Ellen would accede to it, was to have a private marriage.

Arguments are so easy when inclination goes with them. The future looks very much as we ourselves paint it. They might be married at once, here at Eastsea. If James Bohun recovered and lived, why, there could be no question about the entail; the estates lapsing to Arthur, and he might enjoy his marriage as soon as he pleased. If James died, he should not, as he really believed, have to conceal it long, for he thought Sir Nash's illness, perhaps a few weeks, and he might be able to tell the world that Ellen was his wife. He felt an inclination to whisper it beforehand to his good friend and aunt, Miss Bonham. But, he must first of all ascertain from Mrs. Cumberland what was the social standing of Mr. Adair. Unless he was undeniably a gentleman, Ellen could be no wife for a Bohun. Arthur, swayed by his love, had been content to take this fact for granted; now he saw the necessity of ascertaining it more certainly. It was not that he had any real doubt, but it was only right to make sure.

M. Adair held some post under the British Government, formerly in India, for a long time now in Australia. His wife having died young; his only child, a girl, had been sent to a private school in England for her education. Upon its completion, Mr. Adair had begged Mrs. Cumberland to receive her; he had some thought of returning home himself, so that he might be near his wife. An impression was abroad that Ellen Adair would inherit a fortune; also that Mrs. Cumberland received liberal remuneration for the expenses of the young lady.

Bohun already knew; but he knew no more. He said the promised visit to Mrs. Cumberland in the morning. Ellen was on the beach with the maid; there was no interruption, and the prospect of her marriage with Arthur Bohun, which she had been so long waiting for, seemed to her more certain than ever. It was this feeling that rendered her more easy than she would otherwise have been—in short, that made her give her consent to Arthur's plan. To counteract the bitter wrong contemplated by Mrs. North, she considered would be a merit on Arthur's part, instead of a sin. And then, when things were so far settled, and the speedy marriage determined on, Mrs. Cumberland, astonished by Captain Bohun's putting Mr. Adair's letter into his hands, explaining how it came to be received, and what she had written to that gentleman to tell him forth, "So that her father's blessing will rest on the marriage," remarked Mrs. Cumberland; "but for that fact, I could not have consented to a private one."

This gave Arthur the opportunity to ask about the position of Mr. Adair, which in the heat of argument, he had been forgetting. Certainly he was a gentleman, Mrs. Cumberland answered, and of very good Scotch family. Major Bohun, Mr. Adair, and her own husband, George Cumberland, had been firm friends in India at the time of Major Bohun's death. She could not help thinking, she added in conclusion, that it was the remembrance of that early friendship which induced Mr. Adair to give so ready and cordial consent to his daughter's union with Major Bohun's son.

And so there the matter ended, all colour-deceit: Arthur believing that there could be no possible objection to his marrying Ellen Adair; that the way had been most markedly paved for it through this letter of Mr. Adair's; Mrs. Cumberland deeming that she was not indiscreet in permitting the marriage to be a private one. Both were unconscious of the day. He, that there existed any real objection; she, that Mr. Adair's consent applied to a very different man from Arthur Bohun.

Captain Bohun went out from Mrs. Cumberland's in search of Ellen, with the light of love flushing his cheeks. He found her in the same sheltered spot, hedged in from the gaze of the world. Again alone. The servant had gone to the shops, to buy ribbon. Their salutations hitherto had been nothing but decorum and formality, as witness that of the previous day. "Good-morning," said Ellen, rising and holding out her hand. "Instead of taking it, he took herself. Took her in his arms with a cry of long-repressed emotion, and laid her sweet face upon his breast, kissing it with impassioned kisses. Ellen, utterly astonished, could not escape. "Do not shrink from me, Ellen. You are to be my wife."

CHAPTER X.

Affairs grew more unsatisfactory at Dailory as the weeks went on. The strike continued; the men utterly refusing to return to work except on their own terms, or rather, the Trades' Union refusing to allow them to do so. Supplies became more scanty. If not actual famine, something near it began to reign. North Inlet, once so prosperous, looked like a half-starved dog at elbows. Oh, what senseless folly it was! What would it end in? Mrs. Gass had grown tired of going amongst the men to reason with them and try to bring them to their senses; but Miss Dailory still went. Miss Dailory could make no impression whatever. The men were moody, miserable, almost starved. They would gladly have gone back to work again almost any day at all, only as a rule to the present idleness; but they belonged to the famous Trades' Union now, and must obey its dictates. Mary Dailory grew angry sometimes, and asked whether they were men, or cravens, that they had no pity for their poor helpless children.

In southern climes or northern lands. One undisputed fact fast stands. It is this, that woman's woe and woe Make up the hub of things below; For in the softer sex 'tis given To put man in or out of heaven.

Let the wife and mother be sickly, and as a result querulous and fidgety, and the whole household is disturbed. To cure this state of things, the aforesaid wife and mother has only to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The cause will disappear promptly. The "Prescription" is a powerful and restorative tonic of wonderful efficacy and made for the alleviation of diseases peculiar to women. For nursing mothers and debilitated "run-down" women generally, it is the best restorative tonic and soothing nerve known. For those about to become mothers it is indeed a priceless boon. It lessens the pains and perils of childbirth, shortens parturition, promotes the secretion of an abundance of nourishment for the child and shortens the period of confinement.

The largest electric locomotive in the world, 2,000 horse-power, was built at Zurich, Switzerland, in 1892.

Rheumatism Can Be Cured. Hayward's Yellow Oil has cured chronic rheumatism, stiff joints and swellings of the knees lasting to Arthur, and he might enjoy his marriage as soon as he pleased.

A newspaper (the Oklahoman) in Oklahoma City has changed hands twelve times in six months.

A bottle of Angostura Bitters to flavor your lemonade or any other cold drink will keep you free from dyspepsia. But, be must first of all ascertain from Mrs. Cumberland what was the social standing of Mr. Adair. Unless he was undeniably a gentleman, Ellen could be no wife for a Bohun.

Napoleon's first plaything was a toy cannon. Late in life he said: "The whole course of my life was determined by that cannon."

"Remarkable Cure of Dropsy and Dyspepsia."—Mr. Samuel T. Cacer, Belleville, writes: "In the spring of 1884 I began to be troubled with dyspepsia, which gradually became more and more distressing. I used various domestic remedies and applied to my family physician, but received no benefit. By this time my trouble assumed the form of dropsy. I was unable to use any food whatever except boiled milk and bread; my limbs were swollen to twice their natural size; all hopes of my recovery were given up, and I quite expected death within a few weeks. Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery having been recommended to me, I tried a bottle with but little hope of relief; and now, after using eight bottles, my dyspepsia and dropsy are cured. Although now 73 years of age I can enjoy my meals as well as ever, and my general health is good. I am well-known in this section of Canada, having lived here 57 years; and you have liberty to use my name in recommendation of your Vegetable Discovery, which has done such wonders in my case."

Platinum has been drawn into smooth wire so fine that it could not be distinguished by the naked eye, even when stretched across a piece of white cardboard. The leading athletes say that all soreness, stiffness or swelling is prevented or almost instantaneously removed if, after exercising, the muscles are thoroughly rubbed with Pond's Extract. By its use the muscles are made quick and firm, and one is enabled to take his required amount of exercise each day, when without using Pond's Extract he would be prevented from work by lameness or stiffness. Invaluable to amateur athletes and men in training.

It is a remarkable fact that deep-sea parts of the sea are in all cases very near the land. Among the pains and aches cured with marvelous rapidity with Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil is earache. The young are especially subject to it, and the desirability of this fact is that it is admirably adapted not only to the above ailment, but also to the hiccups, disorders of the bowels, and affections of the throat, to which the young are especially subject.

Fatal Results of Delay. Sickness generally follows in the path of neglect. Don't be reckless! but prudently take a few doses of Scott's Emulsion immediately following exposure to cold. It will save you many painful days and sleepless nights. Wasps rank next to the higher classes of ants in point of insect intelligence. Worms cause reveries, moaning and restlessness during sleep. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is pleasant, sure and effectual. If your druggist has none in stock, get him to procure it for you. Russian railways have ladies' smoking carriages.

It is very important to know where to find fine bedroom sets at low prices. When buying call at Trafford's and you will find them. 95 and 97 King street.

MIDDLESEX MATTERS.

The anniversary services of the Shetland Church, Florence, were held Sunday and Monday, Oct. 28 and 29, and were eminently successful. On Sunday Rev. Dr. Carman, general superintendent of the Methodist Church, preached morning and evening and addressed an open meeting of the Sunday school in the afternoon. Large congregations assembled at each service. Monday night Dr. Carman, lectured to a full house on "Trade and Get Rich." All were delighted and inspired. The pastor, Rev. J. E. Holmes, presided.

As Mrs. W. Garrett, of London township, with her son and daughter, were driving into Granton to church Sunday evening, and when opposite Douglas Westman's farm, their horse shied at some object, and, sharply turning to the side of the road, her son Fred was thrown out. The horse backed up and went forward, each time stepping on Mrs. Garrett, and the wheels of the vehicle passed over her. She sustained a fracture of two ribs and a broken collar bone.

LUCKNOW.

(Agent for the Advertiser, W. H. Smith.) Messrs. G. A. Siddall, P. A. Malcolmson and Wm. Leach, are on a shooting expedition to Muskoka.

On Tuesday last Mr. James Williamson, for over twenty years cabinetmaker and undertaker of this town, passed away at the ripe old age of 84 years. His remains were taken to Woodstock on Wednesday for interment.

The other day Mr. Jas. Hoey met with a very painful accident which might have resulted fatally. While he was taking out gravel the pit in which he was working caved in and covered him so that he had to be assisted out. As a result "Jim" has to walk with the aid of a stick.

Three Italian men from London came to town with harp and violin, and the young men of the town engaged them and had an impromptu hop in the Caledonian Pavilion, to the tune of 25 couples responded. A very pleasant time was spent by all.

Miss Marza Mathieson, who has been the guest of her cousin, Miss Grace Boyd, left for her home in London on Thursday morning.

THE CIRCUS KING.

Bailey Has Bought Barnum's "Greatest Show on Earth."

New York, Nov. 1.—After several months of negotiation between the heirs and executors of the estate of the late P. T. Barnum and J. A. Bailey, an arrangement has been effected by which the latter becomes the absolute owner of all the interests embraced in the Barnum circuses, with its title, trademarks, outfit of railroad cars, shops, buildings and all its extensive property.

Mr. Bailey is now the exclusive owner of the largest two shows in the world, having bought the Adam Forepaugh show upon the death of its former owner.

Still in a Tremor.

New York, Nov. 1.—A special from Buenos Ayres says reports of the widespread effects of the earthquake in that city are confirmed. Slight shocks continue.

Fox Asleep With a Light.

Monterey, N. B., Nov. 1.—Peter McNaughton, aged 25 years, proprietor of the Park Hotel, Telegraph street, last night lay in bed reading by a paraffine lamp and fell asleep. A fire resulted and his night clothes were ignited. He was injured both internally and externally and died in great agony.

Hypnotized by a Tailor's Agent.

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 1.—A novel suit was tried in a local justice court on Tuesday. Thomas Ryan, a tailor, Edward Collins and wife, of Durand, for $88 for clothing purchased of him last spring. The clothing was never removed from the package, and the defense set up was that Ryan's agent used hypnotic influences to induce Mrs. Collins to purchase. The jury gave the defendants a verdict.

Out of His Line.

Old Wheeler—But why do you walk up this steep hill and push your bike? Mr. Newman—Because the merciful man is merciful to his beast.

The Family Sargeant.

"Everything that is done in this house is always abated onto me," sniffed the small boy. "an' I'm just gittin' tired of it. I'll run away, that's what I'll do. I don't mean to be the Li Hung Chang of this family any longer."

Ringed Noises.

In the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of hearing, or hearing only faintly, is the result. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood.

Hood's Pills are the best after dinner pills, assist digestion, prevent constipation.

New Orleans has a first class orchestra composed entirely of women, and their services are in great demand for entertainments and parties.

Gibbons' Toothache Gum is easily applied, cures instantly and is sold by druggists for 15 cents.

In converting redwood into railroad ties it is stated that for every tie produced, which is worth 35 cents, timber to the value of $1.87 is wasted.

Like a New Person.

GENTLEMEN.—I find your B. B. B. an excellent remedy for headache and dizziness. I had tried several remedies, but to no effect. I have taken three bottles of B. B. B. and feel entirely cured. In fact I feel like a different person. Miss E. L. TAYLOR, Holland, Man.

In Australia horses and cattle are now being branded by electricity from storage batteries. The temperature is uniform and the brand safe and artistic.

Plain Facts.

As a prompt, pleasant and perfect cure for coughs, colds, hoarseness, and sore throat, pain in the chest, asthma, bronchitis, croup, whooping cough, quinsy, influenza and all throat and lung troubles, Norway Pine Syrup is the best remedy known. Cape Colony exports annually £28,000 worth of dried flowers.

The first barrel of coal oil was commercially used in 1826. In 1883 38,820,306 barrels of that product were consumed.

Why will you allow a cough to lacerate your throat or lungs and run the risk of filling a consumptive's grave, when by the timely use of Bickel's Anti-Consumptive syrup the pain can be allayed and the danger avoided? This Syrup is pleasant to the taste, and unsurpassed for relieving, healing and curing all affections of the throat and lungs, coughs, colds, bronchitis, etc.

The often discussed accident happened in the case of Ebenezer White, of St. John's, Mich., recently. He was asleep under a tree when a chipmunk ran into his open mouth and interfered with his snoring.
