The Venezuelan Question. To the Editor of the "Advertiser":

created by the intimation of Mr. Smalley, the New York correspondent of the London Times, that the aspect of the Venezuelan question is not so pacific as was supposed. I cannot help hoping that Mr. Smalter, and I had some intercourse with a personal friend who is a member of the commission. Of course no secrets were revealed to me; but I formed a decided impression that the aspect of things was pacific, and though there might still be difficulties in the way, an amicable solution would be reached. The British Gov-ernment will probably find it necessary to recognize the right of Venezuela as a small state of this continent to appeal to the friendly intervention of the great power, and of the great power to respond to the appeal. There is nothing in this more startling, or subversive of the law of nations, than there is in the diplomatie protectorate constantly executed by Great Britain and the other great powers of Europe over the small states, such as Belgium, Greece, and the Dambrian principaliies. Each hemisphere must, besides the general law of nations, have an international system of its own. Canada as a dependency of Great Britain, is, with all the other then existing dependencies of European powers, expressly excepted by Monroe from the purview of his doctrine. There was therefore no occasion for alarm or anger on our

In revisiting the United States, I was struck, as I have always been, with the total absence of any feeling against Canada, or desire to interfere with her independence. Against Great Britain unhappily there is feeling; against Canada, irrespective of her connection with Great Britain, there is absolutely none. You may be in American society for months without even hearing Canada men tioned, unless it be in the shape of some friendly remark on her local features or her weather. All the bitterness and provocation to war is on this side. Of late they have assumed some violent and some revolting forms. And against whom are the rifles to be used? Against people who mean us no harm and among whom every second farmer in Ontario has a kinsman or an old friend.

Yours faithfully. GOLDWIN SMITH. Toronto, April 24.

The Bridge of Paradise.

Al Sirat is the name of an imaginary bridge between the earth and the Mohammedan Paradise. It is not so laden with sin fall into the abyss below. Just so narrow is the bridge between health and illness, and many there are who fall into the abyss of chronic invalidism, solely from the fact that they do not know what to do to get well. For so many women suffering from diseases peculiar to their sex, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has proved an invaluable boon. For prolapsus, inflammation of the uterus, suppressions and all diseases arising therefrom, it is truly unequalled in its powers of cure.

Shareholders here are sanguine that the reforms already effected, together with suggetions that the forthcoming tour will present, will justify the changes that have been made in the direction and management.

This woman recognized as Mrs. Dyer's several articles found in the parcels that contained the bodies of children. The police on Friday took away a hundredweight of children's clothing which had been pawned at Reading by Mrs. Dyer inder different aliases.

PARIS PERTURBED. London, April 27.-The Chronicle's Paris correspondent says rumors of President Faure's resignation are rife and that Faure's family favor his resignation. The tenor of the socialist meeting would indicate that the city is on the verge of another out-break. M. WOLSELEY ON "WAR." London, April 27.-Field Marshal Lord Wolseley, commander-in-chief of the British army, was a guest Saturday night at a dinner given by the Press Club. Lord Wolseley made a speech, in the course of which he said he did not believe in the happiness of a nation that had no history. did not hesitate to say that he did not believe in universal peace. The man who believed that the time was coming when there would be no wars was a dangerous dreamer, and espe cially dangerous if he happened to hold a public position. He hoped that no such man would ever be in the foremost place in public life in Great Britain.

KRUGER'S ANSWER. lishes a dispatch from Pretoria, which says that President Kruger's reply, declining to visit England to vitation a brilliant opportunity to gain discuss Transvaal matters, is a diplomatic masterpiece. It declares that the Transvaal Government will not discuss reforms with the British Government, on the ground that Great Britain admittedly cannot interfere with the internal administration of the Republic. Nevertheless, private suggestions from the British Government will always be considered. The President adds that if the revision of the convention of 1884 and the superseding thereof, by a treaty "most favored nation" clause, cannot be discussed unless the alleged grievances of the Uitlanders are also discussed, the Transvaal would prefer to leave matters as they are and to merely demand the payment of an indemnity for Dr. Jameson's raid. He intimates that Great Britain can facilitate his going to London by accepting the basis of discussion he has already proposed. He concludes by laying stress on the patience and forbearance displayed by both sides, expressing the hope that the wounded feelings will be healed and friendly relations restored. ANOTHER FIGHT NEAR BULU-

WAYO. London, April 27.-The Colonial Office has a dispatch from Sir Hercules Robinson, Governor of Cape Colony and British High Commissioner in South Africa, confirming the report of the defeat of the Matabeles on the Umgaza River by a British force from Buluwayo. Gov. Robinson forwards a dispatch dated at Buluwayo Saturday, stating that a sharp engagement had occurred on the Umgaza River, four miles north of Buluwayo. The rebels attacked the Brit ish in force, and both wings were thrown forward in an enveloping movement. The British advance ties retired, with a view to inducing the Matabeles to cross the river. The ruse was very successful. The rebels believed that the British were retreating, and attempted to follow them. When they were within 300 yards of the right wing of the British, fire was opened on them with the Maxim guns, and at the same time the right flank advanced upon them and drove them over the river. The same tactics were followed by the left flank. The rebels later made another attack, but were again repulsed. The British then advanced and inflicted heavy loss on the rebels in the hills on the opposite side of the river. The British, after gaining complete possession of the field, retired to Buluwayo. Their loss was only three killed and six wounded.

OFF FOR THE CAPE. Cape Town, April 27.-Dispatches received here from London say that the Middlesex Regiment and the first detachment of Mounted Infantry will leave England at once for the Cape in order to relieve the troops there and enable the latter to be moved up the country. The Mounted Infantry will possibly do good service against rebellious natives, especially as the corps is understood to be composed of 400 picked men, chosen equally from the English, Scotch and Irish regiments of infantry; but regular British infantry would be of little use against the Matabeles. The latter move too quickly for European foot soldiers to stand 000 Matabeles are believed to be in arms, are still tolerably safe, aithough small bodies of insurgent natives, wind have left the Matoppo Hiffs, are raiding cattle here and there, and almost everywhere killing the women and children of the friendly natives who are assisting the British, and slaughtheir comrades who were able to stand, portunity. tives belonging to the Hope Fountain mission have been killed by insument Matabeles, who robbed them of all their possessions. A band of hostiles is reported to be in the vicinity of Fig Tree, not far from Mangwe, and it is believed that this was the band which recently cut the telegraph lines. They are now encamped a few miles south of Fig Tree, and a strong scouting party from Mangwe has taken up their trail. Since the sortic from Buluwayo, the Matabeles in that vicinity seem to have been reinforced by one or more impis, or regiments, and the native scouts can be made out on nearly all sides, watching the British outposts. Although strict orders have been issued to husband the stock of ammunition to the utmost, "pot shots" are occasionaly taken at the native scouts, and occasionally the latter reply. There has been a slight brush between a Buluwayo patrol and some insurgents at Maven's Kraal. Two or three natives were killed.

A Great Coup Anticipated. Cape Town.April 27.-The announcenent that President Kruger has definitely declined to accept the invitation of Mr. Joseph Chamberlain to visit England, was no surprise here, and London, April 27.—The Times pub- has been discounted in these dispatches. President Kruger, it has been frequently stated, never intended to time, and he has done so neatly. has cleverly out-maneuvered Mr. Chamberlain, who only now is the contrary, as repeatedly asserted, the situation has fined itself down to preparing for a struggle between Great Britain and the Transvaal (the latter backed by Germany), for pre-dominance in South Africa, and, up to the present, the Boers have had the the superseding thereof, by a treaty of it by a large majority. While of amity and commerce, containing a Mr. Chamberlain has been dickering and twisting, President Kruger has gone straight to the front, and is openly arming and fortifying for the grand struggle to come. The Transvaal troops could be placed in the field, to the number of about 60,000, in a week or so, although there is yet much to be done in the way of preparation: but it will take Great Britain several months, at least, to reach that stage of preparation, and a good deal might happen in that time. Mr. Chamberlain has lost four months of valuable time; President Kruger has not lost four hours of the same time in preparing for the great South African coup, and, it is claimed in Boer circles here, that the Transvaal leaders will open the eyes of the British considerably when the right moment
